$400,000 IN BOOZE SEIZED

Lakewood, N. J., July 17.—Liquors valued at $300,000 to $400,000 were seized at a Point Pleasant hotel and six other places raided here today by forty Federal prohibition agents and county officials.

The raiding party, breaking in a basement door at the Bartlett Inn here, found themselves in a room fitted like a cafe, behind whose sliding wall panels, whiskey, sherry and gin valued at more than $200,000 filled the concealed shelves.

Behind a picture on the wall, the raiders discovered a window giving access to a storeroom under a rear porch. Seventy-five cases of liquors were found here.

Lakewood is a fashionable resort, popular with the wealthy all the year round.

At the Hotel Marion in Point Pleasant the agents seized sixty cases of liquors and at an auto agency, at the Point, thirty quarts of whiskey were taken.

17 HALED FOR "DON'T SHOOT"

Seventeen persons motoring through Beverly en route to a Sunday school picnic, including the wife of the pastor, were arrested and appeared before Chief John E. "Lightning Jack" Hayes of Beverly, when one of the party shouted "don't shoot, we'll stop."

The picnickers were from the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Lynn, of which the Rev. Leroy W. Stringfellow is pastor. In passing through Beverly, a traffic officer signaled for the car to stop at Rantoul street.

As the car ground to a stop, Charles Tarbox, No. 70 Walnut street, Lynn, a ball player, voiced the much repeated plea that has become so hated by the Beverly police.

"We don't want to be shot up with bullets," Tarbox is alleged to have said.

"And just for that, the whole

SUSPECT IN BOMB PLOT HUNTED

Federal agents, aided by Chelsea police, today conducted a spirited search for Dr. Louis Mansolilli, who is suspected in connection with the mailing of three bombs to Mrs. Grace Lewis, an attractive widow, who lives at No. 192 Shurtleff street, Chelsea.

Deputy United States Marshal Tighe, Chief of Police Charles Finn and Inspector Thomas J. Quigley visited Mansolilli's home at No. 81 Beacon street at noon and not locating him there departed in an automobile toward the north of the city.

Dr. Mansolilli previously had given to the Boston American an exclusive and remarkable interview frankly discussing his relationship with the comely widow.

The little doctor, whose apartments and offices were searched by police, and for whom police say a warrant will be issued today, charges that the widow has been addressing him through the mail as "My dear husband" for months; has made an unsuccessful effort to win back his love and he hints that the bomb

Pherios grabbed a knife preparatory to doing battle for his cash.

"Stick 'em up," commanded the stranger outside the counter. Peter obeyed and saw his night receipts removed. Pherios chased the robbers to Eliot street. One wore a khaki coat and gray trousers, the other a dark suit.

DECLARES WOMAN WHO RECEIVED INFERNAL MACHINE HYPNOTIZED HIM

entrages may be plots to involve him in revenge for his indifference to the wooing.

The third bomb exploded in Mrs. Lewis' apartment at No. 122 Shurtleff street, Chelsea, on Saturday, injuring her sister-in-law. It was mailed in a book. Its detonation was heard for blocks.

A year ago Mrs. Lewis had the dapper little doctor arrested, charging that he beat her over the head with an automobile starter handle.

The assault was supposed to have taken place in the doctor's car on a lonely road outside Lynn. The physician beat the case.

Said he today:

"She is a vamp. Once she had me. She hypnotized me, but she lost me since I broke with her she has showered me with letters. Letters, letters, letters day after day. All of them dripping with sweetness. Some begin 'Dear husband.' Imagine, me with a wife and eight children.

"Others start 'Dearest Louie.' In all of them she has begged me to come back. I never answered any of these letters. Most of them I tore up. Now the officers come and search my place looking for bombs. Me make bombs!"

"KNOW HER TOO WELL."

He gesticulated wildly. "Me? I make glasses, I don't make bombs. Did it occur to you that a person might have made those bombs and mailed them to themselves so that the blame would fall on another? No? Well—

"If this woman received two bombs before the last one why did she keep her mouth shut? That woman couldn't keep her mouth shut. I know her too well.

"I met her about six years ago at Revere. I was introduced to her by a man friend. We became well acquainted, in fact she became crazy about me. She still is. She lived at No. 42 Taft street, Revere, then.

"You know"—the little optometrist smiled and gestured freely—"she is 36 years old, but statuesque, and attractive and very attractive.

"Yet she is old enough to be a grandmother. Yet despite that she is an irrestistible sweetheart and at making love has the vamps of history knocked for a row of spectacles. Honest, I was powerless after I got in her toils.

"FIVE YEARS"

"She wound sinuous tenacles about me and I was her slave. For five long years I was in her power by conflicting emotions—love for her, loyalty to my wife and family. Only a week ago she telephoned me.

"'Who is your sweetie now?' she asked.

"'My wife is my sweetie, now,' I told her, and hung up the receiver.

"Again she telephoned and said she had a new automobile. 'It means nothing in my life,' I told her. Last Winter when I went to Italy she begged me to take her with me. Imagine that, after I had broken with her."

"What did she say in her letters?" the doctor was asked.

"They were mostly passionate appeals for me to come back to her," he replied.

"NEVER AGAIN"

"But never again." The doctor raised his right hand. "I'm cured."

Dr. Mansolilli came to Chelsea from Naples, Italy, where he was born. He is a manufacturing optician and a doctor of mechanicotherapy. He has an attractively furnished home.

Mansolilli was arrested on complaint of Mrs. Lewis last August. She charged him with assault and battery. She declared that he attacked her in the Lynn marshes while on an automobile drive because she refused to elope with him to Italy. Mansolilli denied Mrs. Lewis' charges and was found not guilty. They have been acquainted about five years.

Mrs. Lewis claims that Mansolilli, heard that she inherited a large sum of money and tried to induce her to elope with him to Italy. When she refused, she claims, he repeatedly threatened her life. Some of the doctor's letters to her were signed "Sugar."

THIRD EXPLODES

The first two bombs were discovered without mishap. The third bomb exploded as Mrs. Harry Bennett, housekeeper for Mrs. Lewis, opened the innocent looking parcel post bundle which contained one of the registers periodically issued by the Automobile Legal Association.

The centre of the book had been hollowed out between the covers, converting it into a sort of box-like arrangement in which the spring bomb was concealed. As soon as the wrapper was removed, the bomb mechanism was thrown into play, but a defect, in the opinion of the officials, probably saved Mrs. Bennett's life. She escaped with a lacerated left hand.

ARREST EXPECTED

The bomb exploded 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon and the affair was kept secret by the Chelsea police and the postal authorities in an effort to fasten evidence on a certain Chelsea man.

The police look upon the case as a diabolical and persistent attempt on the part of an enemy of Mrs. Lewis to slay or disfigure her at long range without fear of detection.

An early arrest is looked for in the case. Mrs. Lewis has been a resident of Chelsea for 20 years. She was born in Boothbay, Me., and has two married daughters. She is a striking blonde, about 45 years of age. At one time she was employed at a studio which Dr. Mansolilli conducted on Broadway.

The first bomb, received in May, was sent to State Chemist Wedger, who is reported by officials to have found that it contained sufficient explosive to wipe out a family.

When Mrs. Lewis reported the second bomb, a watch was established at Chelsea post office in Bellingham square. It dragged on for days and week without incident.

Saturday morning a square parcel resembling a large book was mailed, addressed to Mrs. Lewis. It was deposited at the Chelsea office and was delivered by the carrier about 2 o'clock.

Mr. Morrison who occupies the first suite at No. 122 Shurtleff street, at the end of the brick block opposite the post office, recalls seeing the package resting on the banister where occupants of the other suites brushed past it until Mrs. Bennett carried it to Mrs. Lewis' suite on the upper landing.

When Mrs. Bennett, in the dining room, broke the wrapper there was a sudden flash and explosion which knocked her over and scattered the furnishings. Mrs. Lewis declares she did not return home for an hour or more later. Another occupant of the suite telephoned to the police and an inspector carried Mrs. Bennett to Chelsea Memorial Hospital where her hand was treated and she was sent home.

The police and hospital authorities refused to give out the record of Mrs. Bennett's injury. Post Office Inspectors Sullivan and Bresin were assigned to the case. Inspector Charles Twombly is working on the case for the Chelsea force.

MRS. LEWIS' STORY

"It is true that a bomb was mailed to me on Saturday," said Mrs. Lewis, "and that one of the members of my household was injured in the hand by it. It is also true that I had received two bombs before that through the mail, but discovered them in time. I have got one a month for the last three months. The first came in May, the second in June and the last one on July 14.

"I have been cautioned by the officials not to go into details. I have given the Chelsea police and the postal officials all the information in my possession."

Intimates of Mrs. Lewis say she has been in constant fear of violence from a certain source for some months. They were not surprised when they heard of the receipt of the third bomb, which exploded on Saturday.

PLEADS FOR KISSES

Mrs. Lewis' friends say she has a trunkful of letters penned by Mansolilli. In some of them the dapper optician is reported to have pleaded for kisses via mental telepathy.

The following was dashed off at 3 a. m. on July 29, 1922:

"Dear Old Pal:

"Included in this letter you will find a few of your memory reproductions written by you when you were crazy for me. Now the only comfort for me are these letters.

"This too affectionate letter I will keep in contact with my poor heart. I have nobody else in the world—only these beautiful letters when I die. They will find them on my broken heart and this will not be long, because I feel near the end of life. My condition is terrible and I don't believe I can regain. God knows my suffering, my suffering, my pain. In one word, my life is terrible.

"Have you any of my memory? I will take the chance and send to you one of my pictures but I don't believe you like to see my face again. I am sure you will tear it or return it to me again.

"I don't need any of your photos because I get your vision near my eyes and, for me, I believe that vision is never disappearing.

"I will write more and more, but I have interruptions and when you open this letter and recognize my writing you will tear it.

"When you remember me do not excite yourself; don't swear against me, only send me kisses by mental telepathy and I will correspond to you.

"Dear, I will close tonight and wish you many good dreams of that man who has been in your life many years and now left stranger in this world, lonesome and to step out from your home like one you never saw before.

"Many kisses from your old friend. L."

SIGNED "SUGAR"

Another letter, dated Chelsea, June 11, 1922, read:

"My dear Grace.

"If you think I am to blame for your trouble, please forgive me this time and I will promise to be good to you for life. I have been crying day and night and I don't know what I have done. The only hope I have is to hear from you soon.

"I know you are sore on me for the last two weeks or more and I have a lot of trouble in every way. Please cut this out and love me again.

"SUGAR."

ATTACK CHARGED

On Aug. 23, 1922, Mrs. Lewis preferred charges against Mansolilli in Chelsea court. Mrs. Lewis was found wandering in the Lynn marshes late at night by two young men, who carried her to her home in their automobile. She claimed the doctor attacked her with a hammer and forced her out of his machine.

"The doctor has threatened my life," said Mrs. Lewis in a statement issued at that time. I have known him for a year. He has often asked me to marry him. I knew that he had a wife and eight children and refused and he threatened to kill me on several occasions.

WANTED TO ELOPE

"Last June I inherited a large sum of money. Dr. Mansolilli knew of my legacy and at once proposed that I elope with him to Italy. He told me that he wanted to marry me and invest my money. When I refused him he threatened me again.

"The night of the attack he took me for an auto ride. When we reached a lonely stretch of the Lynn marshes, he stopped to renew his proposals. I refused him and he became angry.

"He picked up a hammer from the car and hit me on the arms, head and body. Then he put me out of the machine. I think I must have fainted for a while. Finally I got enough strength to start to walk over the marshes, although I was very weak. Then the two young men came along in an automobile and carried me home."

'FIREBUG' SETS 8 BLAZES AT WORCESTER

Worcester, July 17.—A firebug set eight separate blazes in five apartment houses in the Main-Wellington-Irving streets neighborhood, reviving the incendiary fire terror of May, 1922. Seven fires were set within one hour.

A cordon of police has been thrown about the district to prevent a recurrence of the blazes which kept the firemen busy for hours and terrorized residents.

The police believe the fiend who was seen brandishing a fire torch near the scenes of the most recent blazes is the same man who set the serious fires in 1922, two of which were in the same apartment blocks.

BY SAME MAN.

After the first seven blazes had been extinguished and the firemen returned to their stations, another blaze broke out in rubbish on a rear piazza of a brick building at No. 4 Wellington street, owned by Thomas Hall. Officials are convinced this fire was also set by the same man.

The firebug, waving a flaming firebrand, was sighted in the rear of St. Mary's Albanian church at Jacque'a avenue and Wellington street, by Captain Roy A. Stevens of Engine 2. The latter summoned Patrolman James Wilson and the two gave chase. The firebug, however, succeeded in eluding his pursuers.

The first seven blazes which followed in close succession after midnight were in the eight apartment block at No. 672-A Main street, the two ten-apartment blocks at Nos. 45 and 51 Wellington street, and the four-apartment block at No. 92 Irving street.

The fires of May, 1922, were in the blocks at No. 51 Wellington street and 92 Irving street.

All of the fires were nipped in the bud, with little resulting damage.

ROSLINDALE WOMAN TRIES SUICIDE ON AUTO RIDE

Franklin, N. H., July 17.—Anthony Theime of Roslindale, Mass., driving through Main street in a roadster, stopped to purchase some candy in a store. Mrs. Theime jumped from the car and ran a short distance to the Pemigewasset River and made an attempt to drown herself. Henry Prouix, a prominent athletic, jumped in the water and rescued her. Theime rather unceremoniously hustled the woman in her wet clothes into the auto and without a word of explanation to the excited crowd of bystanders stepped on the gas and speeded hastily up the State road. The police were soon pursuing him in high-powered cars and after overtaking the little roadster conveyed him to the police station, where he explained that his wife has been an inmate of the New Hampshire State Hospital and he had arranged to give her a little automobile ride. She was returned to the hospital.

LIVING COST HERE DECREASES ONE PER CENT DURING MONTH

The cost of living dropped about one-eighth of 1 per cent. last month, according to the tables compiled today by the State Commission on the Necessaries of Life.

What $100 would buy before the war, now costs the housewife $156.90. The $1 of 1913 is worth about 63 cents, the Commission said.

Flour decreased 4 per cent. Clothing prices increased, largely in shoes, hats, gloves, shirts and cotton goods.

The average cost of fuel and light decreased slightly because of a reduction made in the price of electricity in Worcester.

FAKE DETECTIVES FOILED; SAVE $50,000 HOLYOKE SILK

New York, July 17.—Six pseudo-detectives today held up a truck containing $50,000 worth of silks destined for Holyoke, Mass., and after taking the drivers in custody, were making off with the truck and cargo when a policeman intercepted them.

The goods were consigned to William Skinner and Company at Holyoke. The "detectives" halted the truck to search it for liquor. Finding none they pretended to arrest the drivers for being without bills of lading.

As two of the raiders started off with the truckload of silk, it dawned upon Patrolman O'Connor that they did not act quite like detectives. He mounted the truck and the highwaymen fled, leaving the unguided vehicle to topple a hydrant and smash through a store front.

ARREST GIRL, IN MEN'S GARB, AS BANDIT

Chicago, July 17.—Another "girl-man," this time a girl posing as a man, was apprehended by the Chicago police today, and Mrs. Richard C. Tesmer, whose husband was shot and killed some weeks ago, was sent for in an attempt to identify the slayer of her husband.

Fred G. Thompson, a man who posed as a woman, was indicted by the grand jury yesterday for the murder of Tesmer.

It was only after a half hour of questioning, during which time the supposed 19 year old boy returned answers indicative of life in the slums. That the police took off the prisoner's cap and the long tresses of a girl were revealed. She gave her name as Blanche Voorhees. She said she had a husband in Danville, Ill.

Four youths were arrested with the girl and one has confessed according to the police, that the band has taken part in numerous recent robberies of taxicab drivers.

LEXINGTON TRUCK AND AUTO COLLIDE

Several persons were shaken up and badly frightened when an automobile truck, owned by Herbert Dalrymple of No. 3 Sheridan street, Lexington, and an automobile operated by William F. Maguire of No. 19 Pine street, Stoneham, collided at Massachusetts avenue and Grant street in Lexington.

FRANCE NONE too politely tells England to mind England's business. That reply, France triumphant, has often given. Jy suis, j'y reste. Here I am, here I stay.

In any case, English industry does not concern France. We intend to make Germany pay for damage done to us, and shall proceed according to our judgment, not guided or restrained by England."

IT'S A TENSE, interesting situation. The next move is England's.

Here those who have not chloroformed their judgment with mushy sentimentality will be glad that the United States is out of that European mixup and will allow no Democrat or Republican to put Uncle Sam's fingers, to be squeezed, into the Anglo-French quarrel.

ELLA G. BUSHNEL HAMLIN, President of the Trident Publishing Company in Iowa, writes:

"I used to own a large-sized American copper, coined in 1787. It had a chain of thirteen loops around the outer edge, and in the centre the inscription, 'WE ARE ONE.' On the other side was a plowshare and rising sun and the inscription, 'MIND YOUR BUSINESS.'"

The United States should recoin a few hundred million of those copper cents and distribute them.

THE FRENCH are not defying England recklessly, without knowing what they are doing.

Twenty years ago France might have hesitated to defy the British fleet, all-powerful. Then she would have risked a destructive blockade. No such danger now.

When powder and bullets came into use they made nobleman in their medioval armor a joke, and the same thing for the great British fleet, with its super-dreadnaughts.

FRANCE, FOR THE MOMENT, rules in the air, where real fighting must be done. She has a great fleet of submarines that would make it suicidal for the British fleet to come out if war was declared.

France has lent and is lending hundreds of millions to Poland, to Serbia. She has built her fences carefully, and is ready for trouble. It is almost too much to hope that trouble will not come.

WHAT BUSINESS have we of the United States with that European quarrel, based on the question, "How can Germany be most effectively stripped of her wealth?"

We don't want Germany's gold or territory. We don't want to take sides with the French policy.

"MIND YOUR BUSINESS" ought to be stamped on every American coin and written across the face of every American banknote for the next ten years.

PATRIOTIC NEWSPAPERS that urged young men to go to Europe and get shot for their dear country now mourn about the cost of a league and war pensions.

Were there no question of gratitude, decency and honesty involved, the pensions and bonus should be paid, if only to remind those patriotic newspapers that they voted for the war, that war is costly.

YOU ARE INFORMED by haggard, careworn profiteers that the compensation for disabled men, and pensions, will amount to 125 billions in the first fifty-seven years. And that amount doesn't include a bonus or "adjusted compensation for men not disabled."

One hundred and twenty-five thousand mill'on dollars in fifty-seven years sound a great deal. But the money would be spent here, and stay here, and in that period of fifty-seven years the income of the United States, based on present figures, will amount to at least three thousand billions, or twenty-four times 125 billions. In fifty-seven years, 125 billions is only 4 per cent. of the national income.

"SHEIK'S" LOVE IN DANCING GIRL POSE

Allston woman who has declared, it is reported, she will divorce her husband and marry Patterson. The latter's wife plans to name Mrs. Wallace co-respondent in suit for divorce.

MRS. FLORENCE WALLACE

"WILL BE SORRY OF CHOICE"

Life With Auto Dealer Just One Girl After Another, Asserts Mate

If Mrs. Florence Wallace wants James W. Patterson, alleged "Sheik" of Automobile Row, she may have him—and "good riddance to bad rubbish," So says the present Mrs. Patterson.

"But she'll be sorry," predicts the "Sheik's" lawful wife. "If she marries him, she'll soon find their romance devoid of its glamor, for matrimony bores my Jim.

"There have been scores of women in his life—a legal wife before me, and sweethearts by the dozen. Since I married him it's been just one girl after another. If she wants to become Mrs. Patterson No. 3, and take a chance, she's got a lot of courage.

HAS HAD ENOUGH.

"She says I plan to take a third husband myself. Not a chance. I know when I've had enough. I wouldn't get married again for a million dollars."

Mrs. Patterson, a colorful brunette, has been dodging reporters since the raid when her husband and Mrs. Wallace were conducted by Brighton police at 4 a. m. from the latter's apartment. In her own luxurious apartment at No. 246 Bay State road, Mrs. Patterson voiced her disdain for the mud slinging that has featured the affair.

"I've been keeping quiet," she declared, "because it is such a horrible mess, and I've no desire to be exploited in Jim's galaxy of charming ladies. In order to go through as quietly as possible, I have decided to name only one correspondent—Mrs. Wallace — although I might name many more.

"WOMAN CRAZY."

"Life with Jim is just a succession of women—good ones, bad ones, big ones and little ones, dark and light, bleached and dyed, pretty and not so pretty. The man is positively woman-crazy.

"I let him get away with it for years. It wasn't that I condoned his immorality, but what could I do about it? Mrs. Wallace says. I exacted gifts from him as punishment for his philanderings. She mentions diamonds and sable wraps. As a matter of fact, I don't own a single diamond, nor a scrap of sable. Jewels and furs were for his other women. They were wiser than I. All I ever got was neglect.

CRAVES AFFINITIES.

"Mrs. Wallace says she will divorce Wallace and marry my custom off Jim. Foolish woman. Matrimony is not for the likes of my errant spouse. It's affinities he craves. Wives are so prosaic, don't you know, for men who think they're Shieks."

Mrs. Patterson may be right, yet the "shelk," if one may believe the sentiment of his passionate love letters, longed for babies of his own. To an ex-love he wrote that he wished he might marry her "and have a family before I get too old."

"You'll want two children, won't you, honey dear?" he pleaded. "Do help me get all straightened out so that we may be married and have a family before I get too old. I love you, dear child, more than father, mother, brother or sister. I can hardly wait to marry you. How I long for the time when our babies will come."

12-MILE RUM SHIP LAW TO BE SOUGHT

Senator Sterling Will File Bill in Congress if Britain Refuses Co-operation

Washington, July 17.—Congressional action extending the territorial jurisdiction of the United States to all waters within twelve miles of the American shore will be asked if Great Britain and other maritime powers decline to cooperate with the Washington government in its efforts to suppress liquor smuggling.

Senator Sterling, Republican, of South Dakota, conferred at the State Department with Secretary Hughes. Following the conference, the western Senator declared that, in case the department was unable to effect some arrangement for a twelve-mile search-and-seizure right to eliminate "hovering ships" along the coast, he would introduce a bill into Congress giving the United States jurisdiction to the twelve-mile limit.

SEEK BRITAIN'S CONSENT.

The Senator admitted that his talk with Mr. Hughes dealt chiefly with the status of the negotiations for obtaining the consent of Great Britain to a plan whereby the American government might deal effectively with liquor smugglers.

The prospects for an Anglo-American accord on this point, he confessed, do not appear particularly bright, but he declared himself "an optimist."

READY TO ACT.

Although denying that he and the secretary had discussed the likelihood of legislative action, Senator Sterling asserted later that he was ready to ask Congressional action in case diplomatic efforts failed to win a satisfactory solution of what President Harding regards as one of the two most embarrassing problems confronting the administration.

No action, however, is contemplated if the principal maritime powers accept the Hughes plan a temporary twelve-mile limit covering the smuggling of liquor and other contraband.

7,000,000 STARVE IN GERMANY

Minister Brauns Warns of Peril to All World Labor

Berlin, July 17 (Copyright, 1923, by I.N.S.).—"It is conservatively estimated that 7,000,000 German men and women are slowly starving to death as a result of the industrial crisis and the fatal plunge in the value of the mark," declared Dr. Heinrich Brauns, German Minister of Labor, today.

"They have become paupers because the income upon which they formerly could have lived comfortably for a whole year will not buy bread for one week under present conditions. Then there are millions living solely upon old social insurance premiums.

RECEIVE MERE PITTANCE.

"The fall of the mark has reduced these sums—once sufficient for all necessities—to ridiculous pittances that will not buy a single newspaper today.

"We have 400,000 actually unemployed, but in addition there are millions comprising what the late Dr. Walter Rathenau called "victims of hidden unemployment." These millions are like the ballast of our industries and trade. They are kept in their jobs either at full time or part time as the result of demobilization legislation.

"Throw this human ballast ruthlessly overboard and the result would be to drive them into the streets and invite revolution. To the outside world it appears that Germany is 'dumping' her products, but in reality the constant devaluation of our money indirectly affects all the markets of the world—particularly the labor markets.

IMPERIL WORLD LABOR.

"We do not want to underbid foreign nations, but so long as the mark continues to tumble, as it does now, foreign nations can buy our products so cheaply—against our will and beyond our control—that widespread unemployment must result in those other countries. Unemployment is the beginning of downward revision of the wage scale everywhere."

Minister Brauns, telling of the sufferings of the workers and their families, said thousands are compelled by poverty to go without socks and underwear.

ART AUTHORITY REPEATS WORK IS SPURIOUS

New York, July 17.—Sir Joseph Duveen, internationally famous authority on art, filed his reply in Supreme Court to the $500,000 suit of George Joseph Demotte, art dealer, charging slander.

The litigation came out of an opinion by Sir Joseph pronouncing as spurious a Chompleve enamel, "Virgin and Child," of alleged thirteenth century origin, sold to the late Michael Dreicer, Fifth avenue jeweler and art collector, for 750,000 francs.

In his answer Sir Joseph reiterates his condemnation of the Chompleve enameled figure in these terms:

"The seated Virgin and Child is not genuine, is not authentic, is not of the period that it purports to be, and is not of Limoges enamel."

Sir Joseph denied he intended to cast any reflection on Demotte.

The enamel was said to have been owned by Queen Isabella of Spain, who, tradition has it, carried it with her as a talisman. It was said to have come from the collection of the Prince Antoine D'Orleans, Duke of Caltera, uncle of King Alfonso of Spain.

I. W. W. BODIES ENJOINED IN CALIFORNIA

Sacramento, Cal., July 17.—California's war against the I. W. W. and its activities passed to a new stage today following issuance by Superior Judge Charles O. Busick of a sweeping temporary injunction prohibiting virtually all activities of the organization and affiliated bodies in this State.

Hearing on making the injunction permanent was set for July 25. Under the terms of the writ, mere membership in the I. W. W. will be construed as contempt of court punishable by six months' imprisonment without the necessity of a jury trial.

The action was brought in the name of the State by District Attorney J. D. Henderson of Sacramento county, with the consent of Attorney-General U. S. Webb, after the criminal courts had become clogged with I. W. W. prosecutions under the criminal syndicalism law. By means of the injunction, Henderson hopes to have the I. W. W. declared once and for all an unlawful organization.

Members of the I. W. W. have been flocking to the State in the past two months, he asserts, for the purpose of terrorizing the lumber, agricultural, mining and oil industries.

PASTOR PRESSES RESIGNATION

The Rev. Dr. J. J. Ross, who on May 13 last caused a sensation by tendering his resignation as pastor of the Ruggles Street Baptist Church, three months after he had taken up his duties there, has renewed his request.

The church, on the previous occasion, has refused to accept the resignation, and has urged Dr. Ross to give the matter two weeks' consideration, which he has agreed to do.

Dr. Ross objected to the location of the church, in the heart of the so-called black belt, and also to the condition of the buildings, which, he declared, to be deplorable.

MRS. FRENCH'S 2 CHILDREN GO TO MOTHER

New York, July 17.—The failure of Francis Ormond French, member of a family noted for its divorces, to contest the divorce of his wife, Mrs. Eleanor Livingston French, resulted in the children being awarded to her. They are Elden Tuck and Virginia Middleton French, seven and five years old, respectively. They make their home with their mother at No. 911 Park avenue.

Mrs. French was Miss Eleanor Livingston Burrill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Burrill. French is a son of Amos Tuck French, who separated from his wife shortly after their marriage.

BEAU BRUMMEL A BIGAMIST, WIFE SAYS

New York, July 17.—Charles E. V. Lenz, wealthy oil promoter, is a bigamist if, as he says, he married again after obtaining a divorce in Arkansas, his first wife, Jane, declared today.

References to the second marriage came up in Mrs. Jane Lenz's suit for divorce before Justice Mullan. In his reply to Mrs. Lenz's complaint, Lenz said the woman Mrs. Lenz describes as "Miss Elizabeth Latcher" is in reality the second Mrs. Lenz.

Mrs. Lenz testified that her husband owns sixteen suits of clothes, worth $200 each; ten pairs of shoes, all made to order, four overcoats and many shirts which he buys by the dozen at prices as high as $25 each.

Lenz, who recently was made defendant in a $200,000 damage suit growing out of an oil transaction, is accused by his wife of treating her with extreme cruelty.

He denies all the allegations of Graham, who was Valentino's agent in the famous Players-Lasky controversy last September.

Valentino asks judgment releasing him from further payment on the account and demands the return of the $20,500 paid to Graham, alleging that the lawyer gave him "bad, erroneous and unskilled advice," and that his services were unsatisfactory.

YOUNG LAWSON GLAD EX-WIFE HAS MARRIED

"I am tickled to death to get rid of her."

"I am glad she no longer bears my name."

In these words Arnold Lawson, favorite child of Thomas W. Lawson, ex-copper magnate, summed up his opinion of his former wife, Lucile Mitchell Lawson, now honeymooning with her third husband, Henry Spring Blake, to whom she was married Saturday in Boston.

Mrs. H. S. Blake

Young Lawson is now battling for a living for himself and his four children by selling automobiles for a Boston firm.

"The court gave me absolute custody of the children," said Lawson.

"The divorce, granted to her on the ground of desertion, was the result of a compromise."

Lawson's children are: Jean, 16; Vera, 14½, and ten-year-old twins Thomas W., Jr., and Arnold, Jr. The girls are visiting their grand-aunt in Somerville, Maine, with their grandfather, the former copper king, while the boys are at a camp on Lake Kezar, Lovell, Maine.

"Dad is in better condition now than he has been for the past nine or ten years, and I expect he will stage a come-back when he returns to the city in September," added his son.

TRUCK PROTEST HEARING ASKED

Protests by residents of Pleasant street, Dorchester, against the heavy truck traffic on that street have caused Representative E. E. Kelly to ask the street commissioners for a public hearing on the question. The street is used at all hours of the day and night as a thoroughfare for heavily loaded trucks bound for other cities, residents charge. There is no necessity for this, they aver, as Dorchester avenue nearby was especially paved for heavy trucking.

The practice has resulted in damage to property by the shaking of the foundations of many of the houses, Representative Kelly told the street commissioners.

HARVARD STAR'S TACKLE HALTS THEFT SUSPECT

A flying tackle by George H. Braden, Harvard football star, in gridiron trim, sharp detective work of twelve-year-old Johnny Dooley, were instrumental in the capture of Arthur Frost of Boston, alleged locker thief at the Harvard Summer School.

Frost's capture followed a series of thefts at the Summer School, which have been going on for some time. The scenes of the most numerous thefts were the Weld boat house and the Hemenway Gymnasium, where many lockers were forced.

BOY ON GUARD.

The latest of the thefts, that of $100 from the Weld boat house, caused Braden, who is in charge of the building during the Summer, to resolve to capture the thief. He accordingly placed little Johnny on guard on the second floor locker room of the boat house.

On the third day of his watch, Johnny's vigil was productive of results. Discovering Frost acting in a suspicious manner in the locker room, he ran and informed Braden. When the latter arrived, Frost took to his heels.

MAKES FLYING TACKLE.

Braden followed and the chase continued until the Lars Anderson bridge was reached. When the fugitive had traversed half the bridge, Braden, exhibiting a gridiron feat, made a flying tackle and Frost "bit the dust."

According to the police, Frost has confessed to several thefts at the Summer School.

PHONE STRIKE DISTURBANCE AT LAWRENCE

Lawrence, July 17.—Declaring themselves far from discouraged at the desertion of five striking operators from the ranks, union telephone operators of this city renewed their determination to defeat the Telephone Company, at least locally, by staging a big demonstration in front of the telephone exchange.

Police officers and private company detectives were kept busy protecting the strike-breakers as they left the building.

The Boston girl operators were subjected to taunts as they stepped into the taxis.

"We are more confident than ever of winning," declared Miss Anna Gauthier, president of the Lawrence union. "We now have ranks more solidly united than ever."

Other officials of the union declared they had the deserting girls under surveillance for many days.

Warrant have been asked for by City Marshal Timothy J. O'Brien for the arrest of auto drivers, asserted to be unlawfully transporting strike breakers. Arrests are expected.

New Plan to Arbitrate Telephone Girls' Strike

Further measures to bring about arbitration between the officials of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company and the striking telephone operators will be made. The strike enters upon its fourth week. The new efforts are to be made by representatives of women's organizations of this city. A meeting to this end will be held at Ford Hall on Thursday.

The organizations comprise the Federated Council of Churches, Women's Trade Union League, Consumers' League and the League of Women Voters.

To representatives of these organizations Miss Julia O'Connor, strike leader, pointed out that the wage scale presented by the operators in 1921 was rejected by the company, and that the solicitations of the wage committee to have the matter go to arbitration was refused by the company.

hundreds stood disappointed at branch stations. They wanted to go. Thousands want to go every week, but there are only two boats available and each boat can only accommodate 1500 passengers.

CLUTCH TICKETS.

So today, as the fortunate mothers and youngsters hurried toward the wharf to board the big steamers as guests of the American, they clutched their tickets firmly and saw to it that no gayful gust of wind robbed them of their treasures.

Boats were ready to leave a half hour apart, the first at 9 o'clock this morning, the second at 9:30. They will return with their loads of happy, tired, human freight late this afternoon. In the meantime they will be refreshed with the goodies that are given out on each of these trips and which are listed below.

In the meantime you disappointed folks get ready for the next trip, to be given on Tuesday next, July 24.

Exchange three coupons of different dates, clipped from the Boston American, with ten cents at one of the branch stations listed below and you will be given a round trip ticket to Nantasket Beach and also receive the goodies provided by kind hearted merchants each week.

Under no circumstances attempt to exchange coupons or procure tickets at Rowe's Wharf. Go to a branch station.

Today's treats were:

H. P. HOOD & SONS gave 2,000 bottles of their wonderful health-giving pasteurized milk and also a big quantity of their famous Old-Fashioned Ice Cream.

BERWICK CAKE CO. contributed 3,000 large portions of their celebrated Berwick Pound Cake. The children will remember the "Berwick Kiddies," Berry and Wyckie. Watch for them.

PARAGON PARK FREE.

PARAGON PARK is wide open to all holders of Boston American identification tags. Get your tag on the boat after leaving Boston, attach it to your clothing where it can be seen and when you get to Nantasket Beach, march into Paragon Park as if you owned it.

SAGAMORE BATH HOUSES were prepared to furnish every mother and child free bath houses, but not suits or towels. BRING YOUR OWN SUITS AND TOWELS. The manager has a warm place in his heart for kiddies and will personally attend to their wants.

MOXIE FAVORS.

ARCHER ON THE JOB as usual. Frank Archer of the Moxie Company never lets a chance slip by to make love to the kiddies. He has instructed his plant to have a Moxie favor down on the dock for every passenger on our boats. And when "Moxie's Daddy" says it, IT IS DONE.

This was only one of the boats that took the mothers and kiddies on the free outing today to Nantasket Beach. Inset shows Captain H. J. Rathbun and one of his little admirers aboard the boat.

MALDEN DOCTOR IN LOVE MIXUP WANTS CHILD

Dr. Melville F. Francis, Malden dentist, whose wife recently moved the household furniture from his home at No. 21 Greenleaf street, Malden, and went with her daughter, Lucy, eleven years old, to live with her parents at Cousen's Island, Me., has written to his wife demanding the return of his daughter.

That is the latest development in the domestic wrangle which resulted in preparations for divorce actions by Dr. Francis and by Mrs Ralph D. Somerville, No. 192 Maple street, Malden, who has returned to her parents in Philadelphia.

Alleged intimacy between Somerville and Mrs. Francis is the cause of the trouble, it is asserted. Now Dr. Francis house is "to let," and the Somerville home is for sale.

Attorney George Stanley Harvey says he has been retained by Mrs. Francis to institute divorce proceedings. Dr. Francis has retained Attorney Frank Drew.

Attorney Arthur P. Hardy, counsel for Mrs. Somerville, has already filed a petition for Mrs. Somerville for separate maintenance for herself and her daughter, Florence, nine years old.

New York.—The body of John M. Siddall, editor of the American Magazine, who died at his Summer home, Ardsley-on-the-Hudson, will be sent to Oberlin, O., his former home, today.

Harvey's "Cheaters" Adopted by Englishmen

London, July 17.—Englishmen are adopting George Harvey goggles.

Horn-rimmed glasses, a year ago a sure sign that the wearer was an American, have wormed their way into English favor along with the bath tub and telephone.

Princess Mary (Viscountess Lascelles) appeared wearing duplicates of Harvey's cheaters at Wimbledon's tennis tournament not long ago.

MAY SCRAP SHIPS AT NAVY YARDS

Washington, July 17.—Acting Secretary Roosevelt conferred with navy yard commandants here today relative to the feasibility of scrapping at the yards those naval ships which are to be abandoned under the new limitation treaty.

The outlook for the navy yards obtaining the scrapping work was thought to depend largely on whether it could be done as cheaply in that way as by selling the ships as they are, to be dismantled by private interests.

Mr. Roosevelt and other exponents of the proposal were said to be doubtful whether it could be carried out without excessive cost to the government.

Admiral Plunkett, commandant at the New York yard, and one of the original proponents of the scheme, was quoted by officials as having revised his views after a preliminary investigation of the ability of the New York yard to do the work.

SHOE STRIKERS VOTE TO RESUME PICKETING

Brockton, July 17.—Striking shoe workers, numbering more than 1,000, threw down the gauntlet to City Solicitor Handrahan and Mayor Manning when they overruled the advice of their leaders and voted to continue to picket factories.

This action is in direct contravention to the orders of both city officials and of the police department. It marks the end of the truce which has existed in the Brockton shoe strike since Monday and Tuesday of last week when 168 strikers were arrested on the charge of loitering.

Joseph E. Lacoutre, president of the Brockton District Shoe Workers' Union, defended the action of the strikers.

"We are not defying the law," he said. "We intend to uphold the law of picketing as it is represented on the statute books of Massachusetts. Peaceful picketing is an acknowledged right of strikers."

A secret meeting was held by the members of the Brockton district shoe workers to determine what action should be taken with regard to picketing. The strikers were urged by Ben Legere, One Big Union official in Lawrence, to continue their picketing.

City Marshal Daniel T. Guerin declared that the city ordinance against picketing would be enforced.

CALL THREE GIRLS IN WARD INQUIRY

White Plains, N. Y., July 17.—Three young women, believed to be former employes of the Ward Baking Company, appeared today before the extraordinary Grand Jury investigating the killing of Clarence Peters by Walter S. Ward.

Bloomingdale street, died at the Chelsea Memorial Hospital.

While she lay dying in the hospital, Rose told her father and the nurse that her playmate ignited a match and threw it at her, and that her dress caught fire in that manner. Three brothers, Ralph, Benjamin and Fred Keith, neighbors, heard Rose's screams and tried to put out the flames.

U. S. FOILS GRAB BY BRITAIN OF TURK OIL

Lausanne, July 17 (A.P.).—Formal confirmation and approval is expected to be given tomorrow to the agreement reached last night by the allies and the Turks and within a week the delegates are expected to affix their signatures to a treaty of peace ending the Near East Conference.

The accord represents a victory for the United States whose representative, Joseph C. Grew, minister of Switzerland, was successful in his insistence that the policy of the open door and equal opportunity in the Near East be adopted.

The inside story of the meeting yesterday when the peace made a week ago was "patched up," as one allied delegate described it, is that of a fierce battle waged over the question of the oil fields of Mesopotamia which the English claim under the provisions of the concessions of the Turkish Petroleum Company.

Though none of the American delegation was present, it was apparent that American influence was dominant in the conference chamber and that the stringent application of Mr. Grew's resistance was strong enough to permit Ismet Pasha to hold until the finish.

Ismet Pasha was unshakeable before all the Allied onslaughts. One by one he turned down every formula presented, even those modified which he calculated would give any confirmation to the British company's petroleum concession in the treaty. He insisted that there was grave doubt of its validity and said that the question should be referred to arbitration by the International Court of Justice.

BANKS AT TOP NOTCH IN COUNTRY'S HISTORY

Canisius' new president will be Rev. Peter F. Cusick, S. J., who comes from the Jesuit novitiate of St. Andrews-on-Hudson at Poughkeepsie.

"DISCOVERER" SUES GURCI'S HUSBAND

New York, July 17.—William Thorner, "discoverer of Amelita Galli-Curci," has sued for $50,000, charging the prima donna's husband, Homer Samuels, slandered him in an attempt to rob him of the credit of being her teacher.

Thorner says he trained and developed Galli-Curci, among other noted singers, and that Samuels disparaged him to Cameron C. Baer, a wealthy Reading, Pa., citizen, whose daughter Thorner was instructing.

Galli-Curci Homer Samuels

Samuels stated, according to the complaint, "The only reason we didn't tramp on him is that he got madame her first job. If your daughter wants to study, she had better study with madame's real teacher, Frantz Proschowsky."

WIFE KIDNAPED, TORTURED, TO TELL HUSBAND'S SECRETS

Okmulgee, Okla., July 17.—A story of kidnaping and torture was told by Mrs. George Petropl of Tulsa, who staggered into police headquarters here.

The young woman declared she had been forced at the point of a pistol to enter a motor car on a busy street corner in Tulsa earlier last night. Her abductors—four men and a woman—Mrs. Petropl said, took her to the St. Louis-San Francisco railroad station in Tulsa, where they placed her on a train and brought her to Okmulgee.

SURGEONS DRAIN PATIENTS' BLOOD; REINJECT IT IN VEINS

OPERATION SAVES TWO PERSONS

New Haven Hospital Attaches' Desperate Chance Rewarded by Success

New Haven, Ct., July 17.—Daring surgeons in the New Haven Hospital saved the lives of two patients suffering from internal hemorrhages by draining off the patients' blood and reinjecting it.

This operation, rarely if ever performed in this country, was performed twice within one hour in the New Haven Hospital. One of the patients will recover. Hospital authorities have withheld the names of the patients.

The first patient to be saved from death by an injection of her own blood was a victim of ectopic pregnancy, a condition causing severe abdominal hemorrhage, and from which patients rarely recover.

QUICK WORK NECESSARY.

Quick work was required of the obstetrical staff. Hospital blood experts were summoned, and a hasty consultation held in the operating room. Then action. Operating gowns were donned; sterilized paraphernalia was marshalled in preparation for an operation never before attempted by any of the surgeons present.

It was a desperate chance, but the only one to save the woman's life. No one person could spare enough blood to replace the blood that had collected in the woman's abdominal cavity.

A quick and skilful incision, and the blood was drawn into a sterilized container. The broken blood vessels were snapped shut with hemostats, and tied.

REINJECTED TO VEINS.

Before it could cool more than a few degrees below body temperature, the blood was filtered, and reinjected into the dying woman's veins.

The effect of the spectacular operation was almost instant recovery. Today the patient is convalescing and rapidly retaining normal strength.

An hour later, when the surgeons had removed their operating gowns and were discussing technical points in the operation and the probable chances for the woman's recovery, a man, whose liver had been punctured in an automobile accident, was brought into the hospital.

OPERATION REPEATED.

Hastily examination showed he was also suffering from an abdominal hemorrhage. It was immediately decided to repeat the operation.

Again operating gowns were donned. An array of shining instruments was marshalled. By this time the patient was under the anaesthetic, the surgeons were ready to operate.

The wound in the liver was mended with rubber, a red unusual operation. Then the former operation was repeated; the blood was drawn from the abdominal cavity, filtered and reinjected.

The man is reported improving and steadily gaining in strength, although his name is still on the danger list.

TWO ABANDONED BABES

DESERTED BY THEIR MOTHERS

These two little tots, one a boy, the other a girl, were abandoned at Roxbury Crossing by two young women who drove up in an auto. The boy is Frank Doane, two years old, and the girl is Lillian Doane, her sister, seven months old. This picture was taken at Station 10, where the children were placed in temporary charge of a matron and social welfare worker.

GIRLS ABANDON TWO BABIES

home to her husband and babies. Late yesterday a woman answering Vivian Jack's description, with another young woman, an escaped jail breaker, also wanted by police, abandoned the pretty Doane babies in the Shepard avenue hall way.

GRANDMOTHER FINDS THEM.

The babies were turned over to the police and spent the night in the city's Chardon Street Home.

They are Frank Doane, two years old and Lillian Doane, seven months old.

They were identified today when Mrs. Jack, their grandmother, read of the abandonment in the newspapers and sought the Roxbury Crossing police.

The kiddies also have a great great grandmother, Mrs. A. S. Sweet, of No. 18 Cypress street, Brookline. They often stayed there with their young mother.

Mrs. Jack works. She is a clerk at the E. W. Rinehardt Company, 345, West First street, South Boston. She could not take the children from the Chardon street Home. But she stopped long enough to tell the police this remarkable story:

RESCUES DAUGHTER.

"Two weeks ago Saturday I went to New aven, Conn., and sthought the aid of police there to rescue my daughter Vivian from a resort operated by a woman named Schofield, in Fairhaven, a suburb of New Haven.

"With detectives I went to this house where, after many arguments, succeeded in getting my daughter to leave. I brought her back to her husband and children at No. 5 ardner street, Salisbury.

"She had deserted them three days before and vanished. Mr. Doane appealed to me to get her back. From what I know of her acquaintance in New Haven and Fairhaven I believed she might be there and my belief proved through.

"When I got her back home her husband forgave me and everything seemed fine. But yesterday morning she vanished again. When I got to Swampscott last night Vivian's husband called me up and told me Vivian had fled with the two children.

"She left with a woman next door, a woman who escaped from jail a short time ago.

DROVE OFF IN TAXI

They went in a taxicab directly to the depot. This morning when I read of the abandoned children I was sure they were my daughters and that she had cruelly deserted them.

"Fourteen years ago when Vivian was a child we lived in Shepard avenue. We still have friends there, a family named Carpenter, at No. 1 Shepard avenue. I can't help but think that when Vivian left those poor kiddies she thought she was leaving them at the Carpenter home."

Of the vanishing from Salisbury police there today learned that Mrs. Doane was accompanied in her flight by Mrs. Alice Dow, seventeen years old. Mrs. Dow is wanted for breaking jail. Only two weeks ago she was convicted of being disorderly and sent back to the Salisbury jail to await trial.

ESCAPED FROM JAIL.

On a Saturday night when things were quiet Mrs. Dow, with the aid of a blanket dropped out of pail. A warrant was issued for her arrest. As far as the police know she never came back to town. But today it developed she had slipped in, met Mrs. Doane and vanished with her yesterday.

Today Chief of Police Harold S. Congdon of Salisbury said that a warrant had been issued for Mrs. Doane's arrest on a charge of larceny.

TOOK $140 WITH HER.

"I swore out the warrant at the request of her husband," he said, "after he complained to me yesterday that she had run off with $140 of his money. In my investigations I have discovered the Dow woman was with her. Before leaving they bought hats in Salisbury."

The babies only went to live in Salisbury three weeks ago. Doane was formerly a railroad man employed in New Haven. He left there, it was said, to help get his wife away from bad companions. It was understood the Dow woman was there also.

In leaving he resigned his position. The little house they have occupied in Salisbury is unpretential but comfy, and ideal garden spot for two lusty kiddies such as Frank and Lillian to play in, and about.

Previous to living in New Haven the Doanes at one time lived in Worcester.

Police today wired surrounding cities a description of Mrs. Doane and the Dow woman. It is believed they fled Boston after abandoning the children in Shepard avenue, late Monday. They were in a high-powered car full of bundles, neighbors said, when they took the babies into the cold dark hall at No. 15 and left them there. They fled as neighbors looked on, failing to appreciate the drama brought to their backdoor step.

LEFT TO THEIR FATE.

Mystery as to why the youngsters were left to their fate in Shepherd avenue, a blind alley in Roxbury, was cleared up when Mrs. Jack informed police the family had formerly lived there. Shepherd avenue is close by the Little Shepherd Home where youngsters who lose parents either through death or being discarded are cared for. It was believed at first the close proximity of the Little Shepherd Home might have suggested the alley as a baby dropping-off place.

SHIELDS LITTLE SISTER

Frankie in his little sailor suit of white starched linen was found shielding his baby sister after the mystery car vanished in a cloud of dust out of Shepherd avenue. Lillian was crying as only an unloved baby in a dark, damp hall can cry. Frankie couldn't say much to help her—he can only say, "Mama" and "auto-beel" but he had protecting arms about her and his cheeks, wet with tears were close to hers.

That's how they were—two homeless little pals—when neighbors who had seen the dramatic mystery spun without raising a hand or suspecting anything, suddenly awakened and investigated.

They gave Lillian milk, her bottle being empty. Frankie they gave a cookie. Pretty soon salt tears had vanished and smiles crinkled above nourishing munches and satisfying gulps.

Then the neighbors picked up bundles of clothing, baby undergarments, little socks, extra suits, things loving mothers like to cry, smile or fuss over, that had been left wrapped in bundles and deposited in the dark little hall.

You can imagine the shaking of heads, the sad little sighs that passed between those neighbors as they held the lonesome tots and wished, oh they wished hard that God had only given them to them.

CALLED THE POLICE.

It grew dark and their men would be home for supper. Also their own youngsters must be washed and put in their comfy little beds, so they did what all woman with the maternal call in their breast, hate to do. They called in the police.

Maybe the ride in "the wagon" gave Frankie and Lillian a bit of a thrill, but it left few dry eyes in its wake in Shepard avenue, known as "an alley." From the West Roxbury station Frankie and Lillian became city charges in the Chardon Street Home.

There "Gramma Jack" came today with a big policeman, hugged them to her and then told of the disappearance of their mother. She couldn't take them with her when she left so she hurried away while they cried as lonesome kiddies can cry.

Late today they still sobbed—lonesome Frankie and Lilly—while the police scoured Boston for their mother.

Tarbox apologized. The picnickers were released. Chief Hayes now threatens the arrest of any Lynn autoist who drives in Beverly with the now famous "don't shoot, we'll stop," placard on his car.

MRS. HARDING IMPROVED, BUT GIVES UP TRIP

Aboard President Harding's Special Train, Alaska Railroad, July17. (AP).—Rest seemed today to have restored Mrs. Harding from fatigue which led President Harding to turn southward over the Alaska Railroad from Fairbanks, instead of following a plan—cherished by the Alaskans and enthusiastically urged by Mrs. Harding—to proceed back toward the coast by automobile.

Nearly twenty-four hours were passed by the Presidential party in Fairbanks, the northern terminus of the railroad. The President left there greatly impressed by the agriculture and mining of which that city is the centre.

The President expects to go to Seward, where the party left the navy transport Henderson, and to proceed to Cordova.

The President attributed Mrs. Harding's fatigue to the earnest hospitality of the Alaskans and to the long days at this time of year, leading to many hours of activity with shortened periods of rest. The President told the people of Fairbanks that Mrs. Harding had been forced to go to bed, worn out. She had received several gifts from the people of that city earlier in the day.

The Fairbanks folk even remembered Laddie Boy, the President's dog, with a collar of moose hide decorated with nugget gold and fossil ivory, valued at $400.

BRENNAN ASKS MUNICIPAL I. AND R.

If the people of Boston want better government, they should have a municipal Initiative and Referendum.

That suggestion has been made by former Senator James H. Brennan of Charlestown to the legislative commission which was appointed to revamp the city charter.

"Government of our city ought to be brought into the hands of the taxpayers and voters," said Mr. Brennan. "We should not delegate complete authority to five members of the City Council, five being a majority.

"We should have an Initiative and Referendum modeled along the lines of our State I. and R., which has worked so well and which has proved to be so invaluable in the past few years.

COSGRAVE AND CRAIG TO HOLD IRISH PARLEY

Belfast, July 17 (AP).—Speculation over the Ulster Free State boundary dispute was renewed today when the Belfast News Letter said it had learned that President Cosgrave of the Free State and Premier Craig of Ulster were to meet in London within a few days.

According to the newspaper they will discuss various outstanding questions which, under the Act of 1920, were to have come within the purview of the Council of Ireland.

There were no cases of murder, attempted manslaughter or incendiarism in Ulster during the last three months, Lord Chief Justice Moore said today in opening the Belfast Crime Commission. In the same period last year there were of these crimes respectively 89, 60, two and 140.

MARRIAGE TO SAILOR DISSOLVED

Rochester, N. Y., Court Grants Decree to Melrose Man

The strange domestic triangle, of which Mrs. Mary O'Leary Raab of Melrose was the centre, was solved by a decree of Justice Robert F. Thompson in a Rochester, N. Y., court, dissolving the marriage of Samuel Raab, No. 22 Plymouth avenue, South Rochester, and Mrs. Raab.

On August 18, 1917, Mrs. Raab was married to Peter Spudich of Pittsburgh, Pa. Without the formality of obtaining a decree dissolving this marriage, she married Raab at Boston on September 26, 1920.

HUSBANDS ON SAME SHIP.

Both men are former service men and served on the same cruiser for seven months without either knowing whom the other had married.

Federal authorities charged Mrs. Raab with marrying the two sailors to obtain allotment money from them. She denied the charge, and was later acquitted in court.

Mrs. Raab created a sensation following the trial and acquittal of Clarence W. Loud for the murder of Patrolman James A. Preston of Wakefield in April, 1920.

She charged that during a midnight revel at the home of Mrs. Kate Dow in Melrose, she was beaten because of secret information she claimed to have had about the Preston murder.

CHILD BORN IN 1921.

Mrs. Raab once played ingenue roles in a stock company under the stage name of Mary Gordon.

Raab separated from his wife on October 3 1920, and while he was absent on a cruise, a child was born to Mrs. Raab on November 3, 1921.

The Rochester court finds that Raab is not the father of the child. An exhibit in the case was a certificate of conviction in a Massachusetts court against Joseph E. Mieluch, who was adjudicated the father of the child.

W. DeHaven Jones, Melrose city clerk, furnished copies of marriage certificates for both of Mrs. Raab's marriages. He testified he knew her as Mary O'Leary, and later as Mary T. G. O'Leary.

Spudich will bring suit for divorce.

CALLS RAAB DEAD BEAT.

In a statement to the Boston American, Mrs. Raab said she did not know Raab had even made an effort to have his marriage to her dissolved in the Rochester Court, and that no matter what he said about her, it "was a pack of lies."

"He never was anything but a dead beat!" she declared with heat. "I had to buy my own wedding ring, and I even had to pay the clergyman for marrying us. He never contributed to my support, and he never gave a nickel toward the support of my son Stanley. I hope I have seen the last of him. I'm tired of getting his watch out of soak for him. He pawns it every time I redeem it."

Mrs. Raab was evasive and finally refused to say anything when questioned about the parentage of Stanley.

Irish Name Cannot Be Changed

EDMUND W. O'DONNELL

Edmund William O'Donnell cannot become Edmund William Donald, according to a decision by Judge William McCool, in Middlesex Probate Court, O'Donnell, Medford High School athletic coach, had filed a petition to have his name changed to Donald, declaring that his present cognomen carries the impression that he is a Catholic, whereas he is a Baptist. That, he had said, hampered his progress in life and in his profession. O'Donnell's action had brought forth a storm of criticism from Catholics of Greater Boston who bear the name of O'Donnell.

COL. GREEN'S RADIO TOO NOISY

Shatters Ears at Nonquit, Six Miles Away, So He Discontinues Concerts

New Bedford, July 17.—Colonel Edward H. R. Green installed a radio outfit on his estate in Dartmouth. Then he attached the biggest loud speaker horn obtainable, tuned up, and sat back to watch the countryside enjoy the concert.

Hundreds of folks came nightly. Scores of automobiles lined the road and parked in the meadows of the spacious Green estate and nightly there came salvos of applause.

"Ah," thought the colonel, "I am doing a fine thing. The good folks are enjoying my concerts."

They did, but——

The exclusive Summer colony at Nonquit, six miles away, didn't. First came a faint stir of protest that finally broke into an angry roar.

Ernest E. Ipsen, a New York artist, made the most vigorous complaint. In a statement, he said: "We expect to be annoyed by fog horns, but this is different. I would have been glad to have heard the report of the Willard-Firpo fight, but I thought it was another bedtime story and my ears were stopped."

Colonel Green was quite surprised by the protests, so he announced, via his loud speaker, "Station MW, M. A. F., South Dartmouth, Mass., regrets to announce that our concerts and educational talks were not only annoying but very objectionable.

"Therefore concerts will be discontinued until horns and mechanism can be so arranged that the sound will not carry to Nonquit."

TO ARREST MORE RACE 'BOOKIES'

Springfield Crusade Will Be Carried on, Says Chase; 11 Men in Court Today

Springfield, July 17.—Warrants will be secured for a dozen more arrests, including those of men higher up in the gambling fraternity of Western New England, according to J. Frank Chase, secretary of the New England Watch and Ward Society.

Chase said today that eleven arrests already made in raids on places where bets are accepted on horse races had only scratched the surface of a crusade to drive out pool sellers who have made Springfield their headquarters.

Those arrested and arraigned in court today are: Martin J. Donovan, former saloon keeper; Roger Whalen, said to be chief agent for Jack Madden's race book; Raymond Cleary and Jeremiah D. Finn.

Finn's place was in the back room of a barber shop run by former Alderman George Hadd. Others in court were charged with being present where gambling took place.

Complete outfits, including racing charts and telegraph instruments, said to have direct wire connections with big tracks, were seized at Whalen's room in a Main street office building.

NEWPORT IMPOSTER, AGAIN ARRESTED, TRIES SUICIDE

Newport, R. I., July 17.—Otto Hartman, mysterious Chicago youth, who used his white flannels and a glib tongue to convince Newport millionaires he was Morris Duane, captain of the Harvard tennis team, tried to hang himself in a cell at police headquarters. Physicians worked over him twenty minutes before he was brought back to consciousness. Hartman, who was chased out of town when the police discovered he was not as he represented himself to be, bobbed up again and was arrested. Captain Sweeney heard groans coming from his cell. The officer found Hartman hanging from an improvised noose made from his golf stockings, his belt and necktie. Hartman so successfully impersonated Duane that he was dined aboard the palatial yacht Aloha of Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James.

BOYS SEE COUPLE LEAVE BABY'S BODY ON LYNN DNMP

The two lads, Samuel and Andrew Mesing, nine and eleven years old, of No. 111 Alley street, were foraging on the city dump at Bread street, Lynn, when the auto drew up. A young man stepped out of the car with a bundle. He left it on the dump, and when the youngsters approached it, he warned them away, saying:

"There's a dead cat in there, and if you touch it, it will poison you."

The young man quickly returned to his companion awaiting him in the machine, and drove away.

THEFT SUSPECT WOUNDED, ESCAPES

A young burglar suspect eluded the police after he was made the target for five revolver shots during two extensive chases through the streets of Brookline. One of the bullets, the police say, slightly wounded the fugitive. Scores of citizens joined in the chases.

The man was first seen standing in a doorway of an apartment house at No. 70 Marshall street, Brookline, by Patrolman Fred C. Munsil. The latter, noting that the man resembled a description broadcast of a suspect wanted for a break in an apartment at No. 49 St. Mary street, Brookline, approached him and pled him with questions.

When Munsil finally informed the suspect that he must accompany him to the police station, the man darted through an alley to the rear of the house.

The patrolman sent two shots as the man scaled the fence. The fugitive landed on the opposite side of the fence and staggered away, the shot having apparently taken effect. After firing two more shots at the fugitive, Munsil then commandeered an automobile and followed the fleeing man into Beacon street.

Meanwhile, passers-by, attracted by the shots, joined the chase. They followed into the court close upon the hunted man, who then ran from Sewall avenue to Kent street and disappeared.

Spaulding was a Harvard student and engaged to Dorothy Leavitt when Lupton appeared in Boston and won her heart with a thrilling romance in the air. They came to the ground, with a shock, after marriage, according to divorce testimony.

THE WAYS OF A HUSBAND—By ANN LISLE

A Splendid Sequel to the Famous Story of Wedded Life, "When a Girl Marries"

HOW THE STORY STARTS

Jim and Anne find happiness again on a honeymoon spent in the apartment of Betty Winston, loaned for the occasion. They go to Dreamwold for a Sunday dinner with Jeanie and are met in the grounds by Rosa, who ignores Anne. Rosa advises the discharge of Mabel Storrs to save the big salary. This Anne resents. Evvy helps Anne arrange her apartments and a dinner is given as a housewarming. Phoebe grows hysterical on receipt of Carlotta's wedding invitation. Betty speaks to Anne about Ralph's fondness for the latter.

By Ann Lisle

PAT walted on me with thoughtful tenderness. The sunny warmth of his smile, the understanding in his voice and the pity for Neal which he showed in everything he did, gave me some measure of comfort.

"If we stop to question why this is, Alanna, we'll be going mad," he said. "'Tis for us to carry on."

He inspired me with some of his own sturdy sweetness and so when Jim brought Jeanie and she broke down, I found I had strength to give her.

As soon as Pat saw I had her in hand, he insisted on carrying Jim off. The day's routine would help Jim—that I knew. His quiet courage masked his grief he'd expressed for a few yielding moments the night before. Holding Jim in my arms and comforting him, I had realized that sorrow was forging a new bond between us. And when Pat took Jim away and left Jeanie with me, I felt that we also would come close in our grief.

"Don't you have to go to your office?" asked Jeanie apathetically when the men were gone.

"Sorry telephoned at 8 this morning to tell me she wouldn't intrude here, but that she would mount guard over the office. I explained. 'She's a real friend.'"

Deserve Real Friends

"You deserve real friends," said Virginia gently. "You've always been loyal to those you loved. To Phoebe—when I wasn't."

"You not loyal!" I cried. "Oh, Jeanie, way back in her heart Phoebe knew even when you were estranged that it was the big love you had for her which caused it all."

"I hurt her," protested Jeanie. "I hurt you, too. That isn't what matters now—but I hate to think how my coldness to Neal always hurt Phoebe."

"No, dear," I affirmed with conviction. "She was so sure in her love for him that she only—pitied you for not understanding him better. Does that sound unkind?

"It isn't meant to be."

"It's meant to be comforting," whispered Virginia, coming close and snuggling against me as Phoebe had so often done. "It is comforting. It's terrible to remember when someone you love is gone that something you did made her unhappy. You've taken the sting away. I don't mind if I'm thought me stubborn or stupid. I mind—if I clouded her—"

"You didn't! You made her life golden," I said. "There never was a better sister. She adored you. And her little life was beautiful."

Virginia kissed me.

"I've never felt so close to you—nor yet so grateful for you," she whispered against my cheek.

Drawn Together

And all through the long morning, when we were busy with the tasks that needed loving hands to do them, our sense of being sisters grew. We did not talk of the grief we shared, but I had a comforting sense that it was easier for Virginia because she had me. So against the background of sorrow, I felt close to the big sister little Phoebe had always adored, and when Virginia turned to me once in utter despair, I held her in my arms and was glad I had strength—and love to help her. Her moment of weakness revealed her to me as all her strength has never done.

Flowers kept coming. The phone rang incessantly. The hours went by. Suddenly it was 1 o'clock.

"I wish Neal would come," said Virginia tenderly. "The poor boy must be worn out. Maybe Pat was right to give him that big job to do. But I want him to come home so I can mother him a bit."

"You darling!" I cried. "You have the sweetest heart. I believe you're going to pour out on Neal some of the love you always had for Phoebe. She'd want you to love him a lot, Jeanie—he needs love so now."

WORK OF MEDIUMS

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

Famous Astrologer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

IT would help greatly in any sincere attempt to get at the true inwardness of the performances of spirit mediums if the phenomena of telepathy and levitation were first thoroughly investigated. With regard to levitation, floating tables, seen only in a half or quarter light, are not evidential. But tables that tip or rise in full light are subject to observation, which, if critical enough, may discover the underlying reasons. Another phenomenon which is open to similar control is the lifting of a person on the finger tips of two others, when all three take deep breaths precisely in unison.

I had heard truly wonderful stories about this from people whose word was to be trusted, as far as intentional mendacity was concerned, but it never happened to me to witness and take part in a performance of the kind, until the other evening at a private house. I believe I was the only person present whose skepticism was sufficiently acute to induce very careful observation of both myself and others.

The procedure was for the person who was to be raised to lie extended on his back on the floor, while the lifters, one on either side, placed their fingers under his shoulders and thighs. Then all three breathed deeply in unison, ten times in succession, and at the tenth inspiration all held their breath and the levitation was attempted.

Out of a dozen trials I saw two raisings, in one of which the body of a young woman was raised vertically as high as the chests of the lifters. Neck and limbs remained rigidly horizontal, but this could easily be effected by the raised person, supported, as she was, at four advantageously placed points. Whenever a failure occurred it was ascribed to lack of synchronous breathing. In the successful cases the lifters declared that they exerted no effort and the lifted that she felt as if she weighed nothing. I believed that both were mistaken. I thought I could see effort.

It is my impression from this experience that the experimenters, especially the lifters, do not watch themselves critically enough. The synchronizing of the breathing is troublesome to attain, and that, together with the holding of the breath, is distracting to the attention. Quite unconsciously in such circumstances one may make a good deal of effort without being clearly conscious of it.

BAD DAY TO INVEST

TODAY'S astrological chart holds conflicting figures which may incite to worry and undue anxiety. These may be problems in business and in domestic affairs to meet, but those in the employment of others may find things encouraging. It is a bad day to invest.

Those whose birthday it is have the forecast of a year not without anxiety, excepting those in the employment of others, who may be under favorable auspices. A child born on this day may make its best success in the employment of others.

By WARNER FABIAN

The Great Reform Novel of the Year, Baring Innermost Secrets of Luxury-Loving Class

Friends of James awaiting the verdict of the surgeon

Intimately Revealing the Life of a Modern and Precocious Society Flapper

START THIS BIG, NEW STORY TODAY

Mona Fentriss, young, beautiful and the wife of a consulting engineer, has been told by her physician, Bob Osterhout, who is in love with her, that she has only a short time to live. Mona gives a gay party, telling Pat to go to bed, but the latter borrows a sister's dress, steals downstairs and has "a taste of life." Connie goes to a dance at the club and takes too much punch. She is brought home by Fred Browning, with whom she had uneventfully spent the night. Sel Thorpe gives Pat a "real" kiss. Mona dies and Constance receives a call from Cary Scott, her mother's first admirer. Scott is much taken with Pat. A party is planned for the Dangerfields to christen the new swimming pool. A thunder storm puts out the lights and the guests go into the water without clothes. Dee modestly hesitates on the balcony and then—the lights came on, revealing her in a blinding glare. One of the bathers is saved from drowning by Cary Scott. Pat and Cary Scott become interested in each other. Pat returns from school and declares she is "out for trouble" this time. Scott and Pat confess their love and Scott, whose wife is living, says good-by to her. Pat pretends to Dr. Osterhout that she is about to have a baby. He asks her to marry him. Then she admits she has tricked him and that it is Dee who wants his aid. Cary Scott comes back and Pat succumbs to him. Dee's husband is badly hurt.

NOW GO ON WITH THIS ENTRALLING STORY.

CARY'S brows took on their ironic lift. "That is heroics, Pat; motion picture heroics. 'To save the other woman.'" Pat pouted. "It's misplaced nobility, my dear. She isn't entitled to it. She doesn't care for me. You do."

"Not enough to marry you, though. Not enough to be sure. It's all so puzzling, Cary." Her deep, soft voice shook. "I—I don't understand myself. But I'm just not sure. Is that terrible of me, dear, not to want to marry you?"

"Don't you love me, Pat?" he asked, incredulous of the doubt itself.

"I suppose I do, now. If it would only last, like this."

"But it can't go on like this," he cried hoursely.

"Why can't it?" she murmured protestingly. The eternal feminine within her, eternally static, eternally conservative, eternally fatalistic where its own interests are concerned, was asserting itself. Better the thing as it is, however precarious, than a step in the dark. Change, to a woman's apprehension, is a challenge to the unknown.

"Surely you must know. Surely you must realize the constant risk, the constant danger——"

"Of being found out? I'm not afraid for myself. You know, Cary, dear, I never can quite believe in danger until it comes. I suppose I ought to. I suppose I ought to feel different in lots of ways. Yet I don't feel different. Not really. Tell me why, Cary."

He bent and kissed the sweet, troubled eyes, the soft, questioning lips. "My darling!" he said brokenly. "My little Pat! I wish to God, I'd never come back—"

"No, don't wish that. I think I'm glad you came anyway. It's been very dull without you, Cary," she added with childish plaintiveness.

"Then why—"

"Don't ask me any more whys tonight. Please! My head's so tired with thinking. There! open the windows. Wide! I want to breathe the Spring."

He obeyed. The soft, odour-drenched earthy wind flowed in, surrounded them, englamoured them, swept them into each other's arms.

"I'm so tired, Cary, dear," murmured Pat. "So tired! Just hold me. Hold me close."

The night was warm, moist, astir with vernal growth. The trees whispered tender secrets to each other. Flowers were being born in the grasses. Clouds formed a light coverlet above an earth too fecund of dreams to sleep soundly.

Dee emerged from the side door of the James house and moved down the cedar path, soft as a wraith. The still mansion oppressed her. For two weeks she had hardly stirred beyond earshot of her husband's petulant, pathetic need of her. Her young blood craved air, the expanses, the sense of space and quiet.

Definite verdict had been pronounced that afternoon upon T. Jameson James by Dr. Osterhout, after a careful resume of the case with the consulting surgeon.

"Hell last indefinitely. As long, one might say, as he has the will to live. Five years. . . . Ten. Twenty, if he can stand it. Much depends on you, Dee."

"Will he get better?"

Osterhout moved uneasily. "Better? Stronger, a little. Not really better. A wheel-chair existence at best."

"I can't conceive of it for Jim."

"He'll adjust himself to it after a fashion. People do. But he'll be difficult, dear! difficult. Have you thought any more of his offer to release you?"

"No. And I won't think of it."

"I wouldn't have supposed you would, being you. You're a good sort, Dee. And a good sport." He rubbed his forehead with a stubby forefinger. "As for your own status—you want me to be frank, don't you?"

"Yes, Bobs."

"It's a life of—well, practical widowhood for you. You understand."

Yes; she had understood, and with an influx of relief. Her loyalty would keep her beside her husband, helpless, whereas she would have left him had he been his normal self-centred, self-sufficient self. Mercy, she would now gladly have forgiven him the breach of their private marriage agreement, have accepted the full regimen and responsibility of wifehood could she have borne him the child he wished, the child which might have brought an enduring and saving interest into his ruined life. But from that fateful duty she was absolved; the more reason for standing by him through his ordeal. At worst, she was now free to be faithful in thought and spirit to the man to whom, had he been husband or lover to her, she could have given her all in glorious surrender.

He stepped from the shadow of a cedar and stood before her.

"Dee!"

"Stanley!" Her hands flew to her breast. "How long have you been here?"

"Hours. Since dark."

"Why didn't you send word?"—"Would it have been safe to write?"

"Quite. Now?"

"How, now?"

"Don't you know? Haven't you seen Cary Scott?"

"Not since I left Baltimore. I came the first moment that I could, after making arrangements. Our arrangements."

They had stood apart. But now he crushed forward, took her hands, crushed them to his cheek. At his touch she flamed and trembled.

"When can you come with me, Dee?"

"With you? Where?"

"To England. The divorce can be arranged, and our marriage follow. You can trust me."

"Oh, yes; I can trust you," she answered dully.

"Then, when?"

"I can't go with you, Stanley."

"Can't?" he repeated incredulously. "When I can feel your pulse leap when I touch your hand, when——"

FOXY GRANDPA STORY

FISH HAPPY OUT OF WATER

BOBBY came running back to Foxy Grandpa one day while he was walking through the woods in Ceylon. He had strolled on ahead and when he returned he stood stock still and didn't speak.

I knew he had something exciting to tell me—but the poor child couldn't get it out of his mouth. For once in his life he actually was speechless.

7/6 ©Int'l Feature Service, Inc.

"Foxy Grandpa!"—he began after awhile.

"Well, Bobby, what is it?"

"Foxy Grandpa"—that was all he could get out. Then he beckoned me to follow him.

And when I saw what he had seen I was speechless, too. You never say such a sight in all your life.

"Bobby," I asked, "do you see the same thing that I do?"

"Yes," he gulped. "Isn't it wonderful?"

Down below us in a ravine was a little river which had dried up. There was quite a steep bank leading up to where we were standing and there climbing up the hill were—what do you think?

Climbing up that steep bank, scrambling over rough places, waiting a moment to get their breath and then forging ahead, were dozens of—fish!

I know it sounds like a fairy tale or a fish story, but it is true. I saw them with my very own eyes, and held some of the fish in my very own hands, and they wiggled out again.

As we stood there spellbound by this unusual sight, a Cingalese came up—you know that is what you call a man who lives in Ceylon—A Cingalese.

Fortunately he spoke English as he worked for an English nobleman who had great tea plantations on the island. So he explained everything to us very politely.

"You say they know where to find water?" I inquired.

"Yes, sir. When their stream runs dry in hot weather, nature tells them where they can find water. And they walk right along on the ground until they find it. You see, they have cells inside their heads in which they can carry water, so their gills don't get dry and they can shuffle along on their fins exactly as an animal walks on its legs."

"But it must make them terribly tired," I commented.

"Yes," he said, "and sometimes they get stuck in a rut and they can't wiggle out and they die."

"Where's the nearest water?" I asked.

"Just a mile from here, sir" the native replied.

"Bring your basket, Bobby" I shouted.

When Bobby brought the basket, we filled it with the poor, tired, traveling fish. Then Bobby and I carried the basket to the next stream and in it dumped all of our fish

How they did dart around and jump out of the water and splash for joy It seemed as if they were trying to tell us how thankful they were.

As we left to go home Bunny said:

"I guess those fellows think they've been in an airplane Foxy Grandpa."

CORRECT MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Kindly advise how a couple, married or unmarried, sign a card —Christmas, etc.—"Mary and Jack" or "Jack and Mary," as in all cases "Mr." precedes "Mrs.," as in "Mr. and Mrs. Andrews."

THE card should be signed with the lady's name first—"Mary and Jack."

ANXIOUS.

BE correct. Invitations are sent about three weeks before the wedding. The announcements that the ceremony has taken place are mailed directly after the ceremony has taken place. Else how could it be an "announcement"? The announcements must, of course, be engraved, addressed and stamped, in readiness to be sent immediately after the ceremony.

Mrs. Alexander Bradley of Danbury, Conn., says: "After 14 long years trying different remedies I have at last found a good medicine—Dr. True's Elixir. I was nearly discouraged. I was giving the oldest girl something nearly every night, but now I keep a bottle of Dr. True's Elixir handy, and only give it occasionally. I have tried so many things, but now as soon as I see signs of worms I give Dr. True's Elixir for quick relief."

In another letter Mrs. Bradley writes: "My son, 14 years of age, was always troubled with worms when small and Dr. True's was unknown to me then. I always have it on hand now. "In the next few months, perhaps weeks, BLACK OXEN will become one of the best selling books in Chicago and by the middle of Spring any woman who has not read it will find herself hopelessly out of the talk of the town, for it has many elements of popularity—it is as timely as today's newspaper. It has both mystery and suspense and a love story. It is more frank that anything F. Scott Fitzgerald or Robert Hervick ever attempted, and yet entirely respectable, and it marks the high point of achievement for Mrs. Atherton as a novelist."

"In BLACK OXEN Mrs. Atherton has produced an absorbing romance of imaginative feminine psychology. Quite the finest thing she has done since 'The Conqueror'. It is a story with the rare quality of romance brilliantly realized. Unique in the originality of its conception. The central theme is one that comes but once in a generation. Instinctively one returns to the Fesade Chagine Balzac for a story of such potential mystery, fanciful symbolism and startling originality."

FRIEDMAN'S PILOT BEATS VILLA IN WEIGHT FIGHT

Frazee Back in Baseball as Half Owner of Yanks

TO BECOME RUPPERT'S PARTNER

New York, July 17.—Harry H. Frazee, who recently sold the Red Sox franchise to a syndicate of Columbus, Ohio men will reappear in the American League as an active owner. He will buy an interest in the Yankees.

Frazee and the Ruppert interests of the New York team are dickering personal terms have been agreed upon and Frazee will be a partner of Ruppert in the management of the Yankees.

FRAZEE WILL GET NEARLY ALL OF HUSTON'S SHARE

Under the terms of the deal Frazee will get nearly all of the holdings in the Yankees that Col. Jacob Ruppert and Col. Tillinghast L'Hommedieu Huston have in a former partner over to Frazee.

Under Ruppert's plans Frazee will not be active in baseball affairs, but he will have a large say in the Yankees affairs in the future. When Colonel Huston sold his interest to Colonel Ruppert it was understood that the latter would get rid of the baseball property and he found his duties were to[o] [illegible].

Not only has he the largest part in America to be paid but it will also help in big revenue as Ruppert is the owner of baseball and football [illegible] New York.

ANOTHER PENNANT FOR THE YANKEES SEEMS CERTAIN

Moreover the Yanks are so far out in front in the American League pennant race that another pennant seems inevitable and it means a World's Series at the new playing next October.

In their leasehold at the Polo Grounds the Yankees have a few of the best facilities that can be found in baseball. Low rental is the least of their problems. The park seating [illegible] and the Frazee formula for the ground keepers. It was the same principle as renting a furnished flat.

This year the Yanks had only to have their own branch [illegible] Ruppert a short time after the opening of the season. Could Ruppert without a partner and a good understanding on his hands.

URGED FRAZEE TO RELIEVE HIM OF SOME OF BURDENS

The story is that he urged Frazee to sell his Boston holdings and take an interest in the Yanks and relieve him of some of the executive worries. But he was very well pleased to be related with the biggest baseball money in baseball, under such favorable auspices.

Details of the sale of the Red Sox franchise are known for the first time. The Ohio syndicate paid Frazee $1,750,000 for the franchise, parks and realty.

Frazee was paid $2,000 a year and will receive $500 a year for ten years until the entire sum is paid. He will hold an equity in the Fenway Park real estate until the last payment is made.

DEAL FOR SALE OF SOX TOOK A MONTH.

The deal for the sale of the Red Sox took more than a month, and at one time was nearly blocked for good. During the negotiations Frazee asked permission of the Columbus syndicate to sell Pitcher Howard Ehmke to the White Sox for $100,000, but the purchasers declared they would call the deal off if it was done.

Frazee held up the deal for several weeks in order to sell Ehmke, but when he realized that the sale was obdurate he threw up his hands and sold the franchise.

"BLACK OXEN"

STARTS MONDAY, JULY 23

"Sensational novels have not been lacking among the more than twenty volumes of fiction that Mrs. Atherton has given to her multitude of readers. We venture to assert that BLACK OXEN is the most sensational of the lot. The theme is not new in fiction, but you may be sure that Mrs. Atherton handles it as it was never handled before by any writer. It is a theme forever new and forever near to the heart of woman. I can well believe that no novel on the Spring list of any publisher will occasion as wide discussion."—Boston Herald.

"Gertrude Atherton's genius is unessentially self-critical, nevertheless, it is indubitably genius, genius of a higher quality than that possessed by the artist who struggles with words and phrases to achieve his ideal of perfection.

BLACK OXEN may be considered her most brilliant book up to date—once begun it doesn't permit itself to be dropped until finished. It will more firmly seat its author in the unique place she now occupies in our literature."—Carl Van Vechten in N. Y. Nation.

MR. GALLAGHER and MR. SHEAN

EACH week the Boston American presents an original Gallagher and Shean comic strip drawing to the author of the best Gallagher and Shean lyric used in this department.

The winner of last week's drawing was Jeremiah L. Donovan of No. 127 London street, East Boston. A drawing is being mailed to him today.

Try your hand at it. Everybodys' doing it. From today's entries the following is selected:

Oh, Mr. Gallagher; Oh, Mr. Gallagher!
I was in a street car with my wife last night.
Sitting right across from me,
Was a Flapper sweet to see,
And I kept my eye glued right on her all night.
Oh, Mr. Shean; Oh, Mr. Shean!
Didn't your wife catch you looking at the queen?
When she asked you to explain,
I bet you looked across again—
At the flapper, Mr. Gallagher?

THE ADVERTISEMENTS. MR. SHEAN:

The above is by Frederick A. Miller of No. 184 Boston street, Dorchester.

See if you can write one as well. Address Gallagher and Shean, care the Boston American, No. 59 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury

THE men are getting so cold-blooded lately that instead of going to a matrimonial bureau for a mate they go to an employment agency.

WHEN a guy tells you he needs something for his kitchen you don't know whether he means a stove or a wife.

SOME of them marry a woman and expect her to bring her pots and pans with her.

THE only thing he's willing to furnish her with is the work.

WHEN a man builds a house nowadays the first thing he has the architect draw is the kitchen.

THEN when he showed his sweetheart the plans of the home, the only things she could see on them were a bunch of sinks.

SHE complained about it so he had two sinks taken out and wash tubs put in their place.

SOME guys are so anxious to start their wives working right away that they even force her to get married in an apron.

ONE bridegroom even took a carpet sweeper and a broom to the altar with him so that his wife could get used to them on the way home from church.

AFTER the ceremony they drove up to their new bungalow and he made her sweep the front porch before she went in the house.

HE was so lazy he had hardwood floors installed in the house so that his wife couldn't make him take them up and beat them.

WIVES used to be a luxury, but they're getting to be a necessity.

ONE guy got married the other day and gave his wife an alarm clock for a wedding present.

HE set it for 8 a. m. and told her to call him at nine.

ANOTHER fellow said he had been disappointed in love. He found out that he had married a twelve o'clock woman.

HE told his lawyer that she hadn't got up before noon one time since he married her.

HE finally cured her of sleeping, but he had to hide the bed to do it.

SO be careful, girls. He may court you in your mother's parlor, but that's no sign you're not going to spend the rest of your life in his kitchen.

IF A MAN REALLY TRIES —HE SHOULD HAVE YOUR ASSISTANCE.

There is, perhaps, a good fellow in your department, who does not produce as rapidly and as profitably as most of the other employes, although he tries hard.

You really feel sorry for him but you call him a "dub" and that ends it as far as your are concerned. That is not the right spirit.

You should be big enough and generous enough to help him get his work done whenever you see an opening to do so.

Possibly the man is in the wrong line of work for him. Perhaps his obligations are such that he dares not make a change.

He might be a greater success in the long run elsewhere, but he has not a dollar to spare and cannot take a chance.

Make a little effort to find out what is the trouble.

Think how you would appreciate a friend or fellow workman who would "stand up" and help.

"My prediction is that this novel will interest more women than any novel since Vance Thompson's "Eat and Grow Thin." It is more than likely that the more sensational theme will overshadow its higher merits as an entertaining and well planned novel containing a clever and delicious expose of the feminine mind. I can but suggest that if you are a male and want a jolt for your little complacencies and vanities, read BLACK OXEN. I do not need to suggest that women read it. They will soon enough if they find out that it has to do with the rejuvenilities of youth and beauty."—Burton Rascoe—N. Y. Tribune

"In the finest of a long line of brilliant achievements... It will create a new place for Mrs. Atherton and will be discussed everywhere. BLACK OXEN is by far her greatest story, and to me at least, the most absorbing novel by anyone which I have read in a couple of years."—Charles Hanson Towne—Bookman

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

The flower and fruit of the wealth of a nation is its people. I spent a large part of yesterday seeing a little of the kind of new wealth coming into this country in the form of immigrants.

Is America wise, do you think, in keeping out some of the Europeans who would like to come to this country, but who are barred because of our immigration restrictions?

This question of admitting or rejecting this form of new wealth has many sides. There are under way at present developments which the public probably knows nothing about, but which have a direct bearing upon our future progress and prosperity.

C. W. Beatty, the brainy president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has returned from a visit of investigation in the principal and some of the smaller European countries. Mr. Beatty was much impressed by the class of workers who are eager to cross the Atlantic and he emphasizes that an exceptional opportunity is opened up to Canada by the action of the United States in closing its doors against able-bodied European workers.

An extremely important conference of the leading statesmen from the different countries forming the British Empire will be held later in the year, when mature consideration will be given to the question of how the British Empire can best capitalize the existing conditions. The likelihood is that special measures will be taken to divert from the United States to Canada a large number of British emigrants. Steps are also contemplated to make it easy for sturdy British workmen to migrate to Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and other parts of the Empire.

The large among inhabitants of the United Kingdom to try their fortune elsewhere is probably greater today than ever before. I keep in touch with all classes there, and the private letters which come to hand clearly reflect this state of affairs.

For one thing, Britain has had more than 1,500,000 people workless and there are still approximately a million classed as unemployed. True, quite a proportion of them are of the "unemployable" variety, just as it is estimated that several hundred thousand of our own so-called unemployed are found to be "unemployable"—a large percentage of them refuse to become employed.

Now, does there not lie in this condition in the United Kingdom an opportunity which the United States might profitably consider taking advantage of? Canada, Australia and South Africa would be willing to pay a great deal of money to win willing British workers. Take Canada: The development of her vast potential wealth depends almost entirely upon the growth of her population. That growth can be expedited only by immigration of the right kind.

It is more flattering to the United States than to Canada to reflect that apparently a majority of prospective British emigrants would rather come to that country than go to the Dominion. But we reject them. The scramble to get into this country immediately the new "immigration year" opened July 1 was terrific—in fact, inconceivable by well-contented Americans not brought into direct touch with the situation.

Did you know that there has been a remarkable exodus of continental Europeans from the United States of late? For example, for month's August stage carriers sailed from the United States to Italy than came from Italy to the United States during the year ended June 30, 1922, the latest year for which figures are available. Poland, Greece and Jugo-Slavia also attracted many of their citizens from America than sailed to America during the same period.

* * *

This will greatly astonish those who conjure up a picture of this country being overrun by what many are pleased to call the "riff raff of Europe." The truth is that the United States is today attracting relatively fewer of the industrialists than at any time in recent years. Of course, had there been no restrictions, the influx of the least desirable nationalities might have been enormous. But the fact remains that the most notable increases come from such countries as the United Kingdom, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, not to mention Germany, which, during the fiscal year just ended, sent us almost 50,000 of her people.

Apparently continental Europ-

pean countries have been sending us 8 O. K. to able-bodied natives who emigrated to the United States, with the consequence that a very large number responded to the summons to come back home and to do their bit in laboring to get their native land on its feet.

The recent passing of stalwart immigrants at the beginning of the new immigration year should facilitate the rapid abolition of the twelve-hour day now in force in manufacturers. There are more workers available today than there were when the Iron and Steel Institute drew up its last unfortunate report. But, even so, the widely-published newspaper stories of the twelve-hour day going to be eliminated within six weeks should be accepted with more than a grain of salt. The operation is likely to take considerably longer than that.

U. S. STEEL OFF CLOSE TO ITS 1923 LOW

Stock rallied in transactions on the New York exchange after another day of initial weakness today. Money renewed at 4% per cent. U. S. Steel was sold off close to its 1923 low.

Foundation Co. made another new top for the year. Stulz, rails and equipments showed the best resistance to selling. Oils were slightly improved. The market continued very dull.

Western Union gained a point at 105.

In the secondary dealings declines of a point or more by U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and Gulf States steel underlined confidence and encouraged short selling in the balance of the list.

Losses of one to two points were established by many leading shares, including American Locomotive, Baldwin, Republic Steel, Studebaker, Mack Truck, International Harvester, Sears-Roebuck, Davison Chemical, New York Central, Northern Pacific and Chesapeake & Ohio.

Foreign exchange rates opened lower.

Sale of Liberty Motor Car Co. has been postponed again from today until September 6, at request of creditors' committee to give them additional time to perfect plans for making a bid. Receiver has discontinued manufacture of cars, but will continue servicing operations until the sale.

DOLLAR'S BUYING POWER IS UP

Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale University in weekly index number service shows the average movement, from week to week, (1) of the wholesale prices of 269 representative commodities and (2) of the purchasing power of the money. Both are reduced to the 1913 level. (Thus the peak of prices in May, 1920, exceeds pre-war prices, on the average, by 104 per cent, i. e., a dollar was worth 49.5 pre-war cents):

BUYING CAUTIOUS IN HARDWARE

Hardware Age in its weekly market summary will say:

"Jobbers and retailers generally concur in the belief that the price peak in the hardware market has been reached, but they are nevertheless following a policy of cautious buying for Fall and Winter merchandise.

"The usual Summer slackness is being felt in jobbing centers, and no large volume of wholesale business is expected until after Labor Day. Dealers are buying in small lots for immediate requirements only.

"Advances are likely to be felt in some quarters about possible shortages of Fall goods, but the average retailer does not seem to be seriously concerned.

"Among the leading price changes made effective during the week were the following: White lead was reduced 1½c per lb., turpentine is down about 1c per gal., and a number of manufacturers have reduced prices on cotton mops and asbestos packing. Wrought washers, picture wire, some types of farming tools, some cutlery items and some electrical appliances were advanced slightly."

WEEKS LAUDS LOGAN AND 26TH BOYS

By HARRY A. BENWELL.

Camp Devens, July 17.—Secretary of War John W. Weeks came, saw and was conquered. After a comprehensive visit, which included a review of the newly organized 26th Division and an inspection of camp buildings, he left singing the praises of both.

The secretary delivered a glowing tribute to the Y. D., which he said made a splendid showing and that he was proud of it.

He had seen, he declared, many divisions on review, but none that exceeded the 26th, considering the short time it has been organized.

PRAISES GEN. LOGAN.

He complimented Major General Edward L. Logan and the officers and men of the division for their earnestness and morale.

Referring to the camp buildings, Secretary Weeks said certain of them were in excellent condition and would be retained by the War Department. He thought a site would be maintained somewhere in this district.

While he would not commit himself it was assumed from his attitude that Camp Devens will become the permanent post.

FIRST BIG REVIEW.

It was the first time the division had been reviewed as a whole, and to many was reminiscent of the last grand parade of its famous predecessor.

When the last big truck had lumbered by and the reviewing party had returned to divisional headquarters, Secretary Weeks declared he was delighted.

"They did splendidly," he said, with much enthusiasm. "I'm mighty proud of them. They marched well, their lines were good, and they carried themselves like soldiers. I've seen many divisions, but none that looked any better, considering the short time they have been organized.

BUILDING TO RISE ON NORTH END SITE

SKETCH OF HEALTH UNIT

With legal preliminaries completed this week work will begin on the erection of the building under direction of the trustees of the White fund.

The trustees of the George Robert White Fund expect that some time during the week the law department will have the titles passed on the new health unit to be located in Baldwin place on the site of the old Beth Isreal Synagogue.

When this is done, work will be started at once on the construction of the building as previously planned for the site of the old police station on Commercial street.

The trustees are also considering a plan to extend Baldwin place through to North Margin street.

They have taken already the properties numbered 41, 43 and 45 North Margin street and have awarded the contract for the health unit. Opposition arose to the first site because it was not located in the center of the North End district. After several hearings the Baldwin place site was finally decided upon.

The land was first taken for park purposes and the trustees bought it back from the park department.

CIVIC PRIDE WINS FIRST 'BETTER BOSTON' PRIZE

Sylvia Aronson of No. 21 Holborn street, Roxbury, is the first winner in the "To Make Boston a Better Place to Live In" contest, being conducted by the Boston American.

She has the honor of being declared winner by Mayor Curley.

The contest calls for letters, the letters with the best and most practical suggestion on what can be done "To Make Boston a Better Place to Live In," winning a prize of FIVE DOLLARS.

Mayor Curley read over the letters submitted by Boston American readers. He selected Miss Aronson's as the best submitted because, he said, "it develops a civic pride wi hout which the work of no municipal authorities is of limited value.

"To have a city beautiful," he continued, "it is essential that every person living in the city not only take a pride in the city, but in doing his or her best to secure results that will be beneficial."

WINNING LETTER.

Miss Aronson's letter: "My suggestion is that every one who has a home and backyard should clean it up every day. The garbage should be removed at least once every two weeks. I think this would make Boston a better and healthier place to live in, also beautify it."

Here are several other letters submitted:

"Clear the sidewalks on Washington street between Essex and Kneeland streets during the noon lunch hour. Every day they are jammed with garment workers from nearby shops who loiter to the hindrance of pedestrians. If these same loiterers were on strike they would be promptly arrested for congesting traffic. Why not keep these sidewalks clear during noon time?"—William E. Ohlhof, No. 208 Winthrop road, Brookline.

"What can we do to make Boston a better place to live in? Remove garbage at regular intervals, not every three or four weeks as has been done this past year. Besides being a disgrace, this leaving refuse and garbage to accumulate indefinitely is a decided menace to health. Surely here is a chance to give work to men and at the same time keep up our reputation as a Better Boston. Also improve Castle Island. It should be a beauty spot. Investigate and expose present unsanitary conditions and you will be doing a work of charity."—Mrs. L. F. J., No. 3 Dunford street, Roxbury.

MORE SWIMS WANTED.

"My suggestions to improve Boston are these. Establish more public bath houses and swimming pools. Have an L street swimming place on the opposite side of Boston. Either bed or rope off part of the Charles River for bathing. There are many persons who cannot make use of our beaches through lack of time or money, or both."—George Lewis, 139 Chandler street, Boston.

"Look before we eat. Restaurants in Boston are charging ten cents for sandwiches without buttering the bread. This doesn't help Boston."—W. Bridges, 122 Pembroke street.

"The new Hub Silent Policeman you pictured recently was a good one and it showed how Boston was economizing. But alas in the wrong way. Now bring your photographer (Mr. Dresser) to the Park street Mall, Franklin Park Zoo, City Point and have pictures taken of the public drinking fountains. You will find a sudden change to waste. Thousands of gallons of fresh water is wasted daily. Naughty, naughty Boston! Don't wet your feet so extravagantly. Have faucets attached immediately."— Maurice Miller, 2 Franklin street.

BRITISH SHIPPING SURPASSED BY U. S. AND GERMAN LINERS

Southampton, Eng., July 17 (I. N. S.).—The British mercantile marine —for years supreme—is fighting with its back to the wall. There were no loud cheers from British throats when the giant American liner Leviathan sailed for New York today.

Both American and German steamship lines are making serious inroads into British passenger and freight business.

SLEEPY QUINCY OFFICIAL WAKES TO FIND HE'S FIRED

A messenger from City Hall was at the bedside of Horace G. Crocker, Public Works Commissioner of Quincy, when the tired city official awoke from sound slumber at 9 a. m.

"You're fired, The Mayor says so. Reason is inefficiency." This from the messenger, Everett Prior.

"Aw! Go 'way, I'm sleepy and taint time to go to work. I'll be down there, don't worry. Go 'way."

Commissioner Crocker turned over for another "forty winks."

Messenger Prior turned to the door. "You're fired, I tell you. You can pound the car all day if you like. There's another Commish on the job today."

'Twas true. Mayor Gustave H. Bates removed Commissioner Crocker after many weeks of rumors that he would so act.

Largest Evening Circulation in New England—July 17, 1923

Total fires in 1921 in the city of Boston amounted to 4,408, or 680 more than in 1920. Of these 2,696 were buildings.

What You Can't Do NOW, You Can Never Do

There Is No Such Thing as a Tomorrow That Is to Do Wonders. Tomorrow Means NEVER. It Is a Word of Failure

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

Don't plan for anything tomorrow, unless you ARE WORKING AT THAT THING TODAY.

If you can't work today, you can't work tomorrow.

If you can't begin the thing today, you can NEVER begin it.

Tomorrow is a word that in every language means NEVER. It means self-deception, disappointment, idleness, lack of purpose.

When a thought comes to you, get at it.

Don't say to yourself, "I will do that sometime; perhaps tomorrow."

Make a note of the idea, think it over, plan for it, BEGIN IT.

If you can't start it now, you never can do it.

The thing to do is to work today, and to keep working tomorrow and every other day.

Keep your mind on today, devote the hours of today TO THE WORK OF TODAY.

Then when today's working hours are over, and you have actually done all that you can in those hours of work, permit yourself, if you choose, to think of plans and dreams for the future.

There is not a young man in the country without some good idea, some good plan, some earnest hope in his mind.

But the curse of a million is that the plan, the idea, is to take form and become real TOMORROW.

Get away from that tomorrow habit.

You need not take literally the advice, "Live as though this were to be your last day." A man who starts a house must believe that he has days ahead in which to finish it.

The thing to do IS TO START THE HOUSE TODAY, and let the tomorrows take care of their work.

Pity the poor "futurist" of failure. He is the futurist of tomorrow, the futurist of the plan that will never become real action. He is as dismal a failure in his way as those poor so-called "futurists" who invented what they call a new style of art, and have only succeeded in being unusually hideous.

Newspapers Are Reflectors

The Fight Proves It

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

The Christian Science Monitor, well and seriously edited, has taken the trouble to measure the space, in inches, that the newspapers of the United States gave to the Dempsey fight, and to a great educational meeting held on the same day. And the Christian Science editor was shocked to discover that on the average, Dempsey's uppercuts, hooks, left swings and rabbit punches beat the educational meeting about a thousand to one.

This proves once more that the modern newspaper is a mirror reflecting the people. For one person in the United States that would have paid ten cents to attend the educational meeting, a thousand, unfortunately, would have paid ten dollars to see the prizefight.

Newspapers can't change that situation, the people themselves must do it. The mirror cannot change the face that looks into it.

Three Unromantic Words

An Effort to End Bovine Consumption

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

HOGS, CORN, WHEAT.

Three words, not romantic, but it would be bad for the world should they suddenly disappear.

The United States government is taking a hog, corn and wheat census to find out the conditions of those crops, far more important than all precious metals combined.

It is known already that crops will be gigantic, at least a thousand millions in excess of the estimates.

The government and the farmers of New York State are combining in an effort to clean up every herd and make bovine tuberculosis forever unknown throughout the State. It is a big undertaking, not impossible. The national government should be back of it in every State; the farmers should not be asked to stand the loss involved. Incidentally hogs, feeding behind the cattle, will avoid tuberculosis if the herds are rid of it.

Enforcing the Law

Everywhere through New England there is increasing evidence of the increasing efficiency of our prohibition enforcement officials.

The mills of the law grind slowly, yet they grind exceedingly small.

Those who have been blindly defying the prohibition law are finding that the cordon of State and national officers is growing tighter and tighter.

The other day a friend of ours sighed because he found it was difficult to get a real good bottle of whiskey for a reasonable price. He had been boasting about his bootlegger, and we asked him where his bootlegger was, and he said, woefully: "My bootlegger has gone out of business." We asked him why, and he said: "Because my bootlegger is a gentleman for a man of his calling, and he told me recently that he could no longer get stuff that was fit AND SAFE to drink except at such prices as made it unprofitable."

The women are rousing themselves all over the country, and the judges will soon follow the example of Judge Morris of the U. S. Court in imposing jail sentences and not light fines.

Then we shall see prohibition about as efficient as any other prohibitive law, such as "Thou shalt not steal."

CLAIMS MEN CAN LIVE TO 140

LONDON, July 17.—The old idea that "three score years and ten" is the normal span of life was scotched by Dr. Leonard Williams, famous London specialist, in a lecture on "Physiological Efficiency" to the Aldwych Club here.

Dr. Williams maintained that man, if he paid the necessary attention to dietary and health laws, ought to live to 140 or 150 years.

"There is nothing inevitable about illness," he said. "If we get a disease we ought not to be pitied as victims, but condemned as fools."

One Man Beaches

Editor Boston American:

I have noticed the tendency to make the seashores one man beaches. The police bully the people into thinking they are trespassers when they are on these beaches.

The beach below the low tide line is Federal property. No one can buy or controll it or put people off provided they approach it without trespassing. I have been a Humerock beach three times this Summer and watched a fine con game wished on the public. There is a public highway that leads to the beach district. Police are stationed there to stop approach and turn you down a highway that parallels he beach. The property between the highway and the beach is privately controlled. You are stopped on this highway and a demand is made that you pay fifty cents.

WM. H. SIMONDS.

Pastor Justified

Editor, Boston American:

If Mrs. Hague tickled the skyplan with a wisp of Timothy hay, he—the sky-pilot—was perfectly justified in kissing, or attempting to kiss the lady in retaliation. Any red-blooded female would act just that way.

TERRY CASSIDY.

WORDSFROM THE LIPS OF WISE MEN

WHERE wealth accumulates and men decay.—Goldsmith.

If you pursue good with labor, the labor passes away but the good remains. If you pursue evil with pleasure, the pleasure passes away and the evil remains.

* * *

A well-composed song strikes and softens the mind and produces a greater effect than a moral work, which convinces our reason, but does not warm our feelings nor effect the slightest alteration in our habits.

Thrown Out of Work

Editor Helping Hand:

I am a young mother with two small children, a boy almost four and a little girl almost three. My husband has been sick for the last two or three years, so I have to work, but the mill where I was working has closed down for lack of work, and they don't know when they will start again. I would be very grateful for clothes for myself and the children. I wear size 38.

MRS. D. D.

Boys in Need

Editor Helping Hand:

Mrs. C. P. sent me some nice things for myself, and I am very grateful for them, as they were very nice. Would it be asking too much for clothes for my boys? My husband came in last night with only $32 after four weeks. The boys need everything, especially the four-year-old. M. S.

Outing Offered

Editor Helping Hand:

I will give the two boys of Mrs. N. O. N. a week-end at my cottage in Monponsett, and perhaps a week or two at a later date and gladly pay all expenses.

W. F. Y.

Many thanks. The two youngsters will deeply appreciate it. They have been notified.

Clothing for Girl

Editor Helping Hand:

I am a regular reader of your paper, and have noted your Helping Hand column. I have a lot of nice clothing for a girl between nine and eleven, which my own daughter has outgrown. I would very gladly give them to some poor mother.

MRS. ALLSTON.

Thank you. You have been sent the address of Mrs. J. L., who has six children, one of whom is nine.

Thanks Givers

Editor Helping Hand:

I wish to write you a line to thank you, and I have also written and thanked the people whose addresses you sent me. I hope and trust the Helping Hand will go on with their work. We are very glad to get the clothes, and my mother is getting along finely. It put new life in her to think how fine the people were to help us out. D. G.

Thanks from Family of 8

Editor Helping Hand:

I want to thank you for your kindness for sending names to me. I heard from a gentleman in Maiden who sent my husband clothes and shoes. I do not know how to thank you both, as I have a family of eight and only my husband's very small salary.

MRS. M. F. C.

Will Make Dress

Editor Helping Hand:

Please send me the address of Mrs. K. W., whose appeal was in Friday's paper. I know what it is to starve. I have no dress for her six-year-old, but will make her one. God bless your work. I have three union suits for Mr. K. W., one cotton dress, one voile dress, one pair of shoes for Mrs. K. W., three pairs of bloomers for the six-year-old girl, and a slip, two undershirts and a few other things. MRS. A. J.

You are very kind indeed. You have been sent Mrs. K. W.'s address.

Clothing Needed

Editor Helping Hand:

I am writing to see if you can help me out. I am working in the cotton mill one day a week and find it pretty hard to get along on that. I have no mother and father, and try to keep things the best I can, for I have three younger brothers and a young sister to look out for at home. If you will help me out in the line of clothing, size 44 to 46, I would be very grateful.

MISS L. M.

Bassinette Complete

Editor Helping Hand:

I note in today's paper that Mrs. D. H. needs a bassinette for her baby. I have one which I would like to give her. I have a mattress and trimmings for it. Also have a few other baby articles she can have if she wants them. I have a few baby clothes also, which might help. Will you please send her my address or let me know hers, so I shall know where to send them.

MRS. F. R.

Mrs. D. H. will be mighty grateful for all the things you mention. Her address has been sent you and she has been notified. Many thanks.

Trip to the Beach

Editor Helping Hand:

If you will put Mrs. K. W. in touch with me, I will pay her carfare to bring her little girl to my home, and we can pick out clothes to fit a child about that age. Hope she gets clothes for the boy and husband. Perhaps I have something that would fit herself. In a family of three adults I could give a trustworthy girl, aged twelve or over, a week or two at the beach in return for light household duties. MRS. J. R. Y.

Many thanks for your kind offer to Mrs. K. W. She has been notified.

Other Offers

The editor wishes to express his sincere thanks to the following people for their generous offers of help to those in need. They have been sent the addresses they request.

Mrs. A. J. S., Dorchester—Kitchen stove for Mrs. H. A. G. Mrs. M. C. H., South Sanford, Ct. —Quite a few things for Mrs. M. W. Mrs. J. E. F., Hampton Beach, N. H.—Home for Mrs. C. F. H. Mrs. H. M. ## COCKS OF THE WALK ALWAYS TAKE THE LAST CROW

By Herbert Kaufman

A STANDARD problem in school arithmetics is the case of Tabby in the well, constantly losing half the ground she gains. A parallel to the Ruhr now.

Whenever it seems certain that the reparations cat is ready for skinning, for one reason or other the situation escapes diplomatic grasp.

Poincare, as usual, changes his mind. After leading the world to understand that France is prepared to meet allies half way in the handling of Germany, the artful dodger of the Quai d'Orsay delivers a speech at Senlis, on the Belgian border, in which he reaffirms a have-and-hold policy for occupied districts, and declares irrevocable opposition to any plan for the adjustment of indemnities through international commission.

The cock of the walk always has the last crow.

Naval disarmament is all to the advantage of Chanticleer, whose spurs were never effective at sea.

If the Washington conference had devoted more of its attention to the reduction of armies there'd be less prospect of a dominant bully power on the continent and greater likelihood of realizing the dream for which democracy "did and died."

A House of Cards Begins to Fall

The League of Nations isn't a mending pot. Glue is already melting throughout that impossible House of Cards called Jugo-Slavia.

Expedient theory won't bind hereditarily discordant races together. The Serbs and Slovenes haven't a common denominator except religion, and Serbs and Croats speak the same language and differ over everything else.

None of the three is possessed of financial or commercial experience, and a twentieth century government can't be run without it.

Consanguinity and economics are the only permanent map-paints. Frontiers established by idealism and intrigue are marked on sand. Jugo-Slavia, as presently constituted, shan't outlast the decade.

Time will prove the incompetence of Versailles engineering. Destiny doesn't follow treaty blueprints. Politics proposes and human nature disposes of its plots.

Wait until the next war breaks in the Balkans and watch the pieces fly.

Treaties, like contracts, are easier written than enforced. Mr. Browne, the British subject who drafts a lease for Manhattan landlords even more oppressive and confiscatory than those issued by medieval abbeys, writes to disapproving New York editors that he may not know our laws, but none the less believes that no court can override his projected evasions of responsibility for accidents and losses through elevator breakdowns, bad wiring, and the omission of cautions and repairs which have hitherto been held obligatory upon house-owners.

A long and involved sentence, but take the pains to read it. Let the facts sink into your memory. The fine print on the back of your lease is full of longer sentences, and far more involved ones.

Legal spiders purposely spin such technical webs to bewilder untrained intelligence. Never sign a paper which your own attorney hasn't first examined. Every word and comma has its special significance to justice.

Doctors are not the only persons to consult before trouble starts.

He Overlooked Goldfish and Canaries

Mr. Browne also insists upon the landlords' sole authority to determine the character of folk who visit their tenants.

If they don't like your friends, surrender the premises to somebody willing to pay more for them. Sweet land of liberty!

His association, furthermore, expects to increase rentals according to the number of individuals occupying a specific house or apartment. When Helen comes home from school, or you have out-of-town guests, mail an additional check.

Families with lodgers must forthwith revise hallroom rates and so boost cost of living for shop girls and students. In parts of Europe the government imposes a tax on every windowpane, hen and cow. Mr. Browne should go the whole hog and establish a schedule for keeping canary birds and goldfish.

Some day we'll learn to swat camels on the nose. Hotels were unprotestingly allowed to charge extra for two in a room, and since they got away with it, tenement owners greedily proceed to crowd through the same open window. How promptly profiteers ape each other's methods.

The Chicago judge who rules that a restaurant proprietor admitting vicious persons is responsible for the death or injury of patrons, likewise treads upon dangerous grounds.

Take along the Social Register and a Bradstreet rating when on pleasure bent. If this sort of thing keeps up, America will be worse than Russia under the Czar, with everyone packing identification cards and municipal permits, while privileged interests and pestiferous mentors arbitrarily fix taxes and restrictions.

Washington issues regulations for the making of cider and the separation of non-alcoholic fruit juices, and even sets the acetic content of vinegar.

By taking a course in chemistry you'll be able to know if you are violating prohibition statutes.

Fanaticism has no sense of proportion and therefore produces many of the conditions it protests.

Back to sanity, the Constitution and the Bill of Rights!

New York banks decide to raise the salaries of 20,000 clerks. They won't get as much as bricklayers, but hope to equal the earnings of hod carriers and other day laborers.

White-collar jobs aren't what they used to be since laundry and wool tariff began to batten on pay envelopes. The man who wears overalls buys the silk shirts and touring cars.

Lads behind the counter and on the ledger stool ride on trolleys and subways.

If you can't afford a professional education for your children, have them taught a trade.

Union apprentices consume more than little cogs in financial and business machines.

The law of supply and demand makes new top dogs for each generation.
